"We who sing must be extra cautious about our throats. I get my greatest enjoyment from Lucky Strikes because I find they do not affect my voice."

Grovann Matrielle

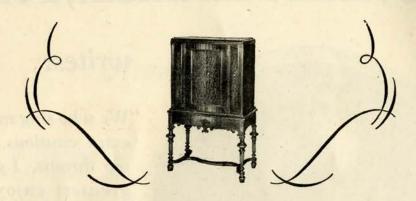

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

"It's toasted"

No Throat Irritation - No Cough.

When in New York you are cordially invited to see how Lucky Strikes are made at our exhibit, corner Broadway and 45th Street.

Music electrically amplified from muted whisper to fullorchestra volume in an instant

WHATEVER music your mood dictates . . . the latest dance . . . the greatest aria . . . the finest symphony . . . awaits you on the Victor Electrola. The pathos of one of Kreisler's renditions in an ethereal whisper, or the mighty, throbbing thunder of a Wagner composition as played by full orchestra. On the Victor Electrola, volume can be raised to an intensity that would fill this auditorium, or instantly stilled to a whisper in an ordinary room. And there is a perfect realism, sonority and richness of tone at either extreme, and in between.

The cabinet is a piece of furniture of supreme beauty for your living-room. Conceived by Victor artists in exquisite classic taste, it strikes, at the same time, a distinctive modern note. No batteries are needed, for the instrument operates directly from the electric-light socket. And, as an extra feature, it makes a wonderful loud-speaker for your independent radio set.

Your nearest Victor dealer will be glad to demonstrate this unusual instrument. Make it a point to see him on your next trip downtown.

MAYORS OFFICE

SAN FRANCISCO

September 2, 1927.

To the Members of the San Francisco Opera Association:-

Let me extend to you, on the auspicious opening of your San Francisco Opera's fifth successful season, my hearty appreciation of all that your splendid presentation of grand opera has meant to our community. No other institution has done more to spread the fame of San Francisco as a center of music. It has made opera a vital part of the life of our happy people.

San Francisco needs an opera house worthy of such productions, and it is my earnest hope that this will be realized in the completion, erelong, of the War Memorial Building in the Civic Center. To this end you may be assured of my fullest cooperation.

Very sincerely yours

Mayor.

GAETANO MEROLA

Opera lovers of California hold the name of Gaetano Merola in grateful regard; for it is mainly due to his vision, organizing powers and untiring labors that the State has realized a long cherished dream of producing locally maintained grand opera.

Gaetano Merola brought to the directorship of the San Francisco Association, now in its fifth successful season, a distinguished reputation as conductor of opera.

The son of a violinist in the court of Ferdinand II, Maestro Merola began his musical studies at an early age. Graduating with honors, at the age of eighteen, from the Royal Conservatory of his native Naples, he came, the following year, to the United States, where he was engaged by the Metropolitan Opera Company as assistant of its conductor-in-chief, Luigi Mancinelli. He remained with that company for one season, then toured the country with a small opera concern. Soon afterward he was secured by Oscar Hammerstein as director of his Manhattan and London Opera House, the association covering three years. On the close of the war he formed a connection with the San Carlo Opera Company, and with that company again toured the United States.

In 1921 he came to California and while there organized a season of open air opera at Stanford University, the success of which pointed out the possibilities of a local opera organization. A prominent group of music lovers asked Maestro Merola to remain here and organize the San Francisco Opera Company. Maestro Merola assembled his orchestra and chorus, called several leading artists from New York and Chicago and in 1923, the company gave its initial performance. Since its foundation Merola has been the Association's guiding spirit. He is also directorgeneral of the Los Angeles Grand Opera Association, founded the following year.

His career as conductor began at the Court Theatre at Altenburg, Saxony. After filling a three-year conductorship there, Saxony. After filling a three-year conduction of the accepted an engagement with the Municipal Opera he accepted an engagement with the Municipal Opera House of Elberfeld Barmen as chief conductor. impression his conducting made on Maurice Grau, during a concert term in London in 1899, led to an offer from that impresario to fill the position of chief conductor at the Metropolitan, which was accepted by Hertz after the expiration of a three-year contract with the Municipal Opera Company of Breslau. During the thirteen years of his conductorship at the Metropolitan, Hertz led the first representation of "Parsifal" given outside Bayreuth, the premier of Strauss' "Salome" and "Der Rosenkavalier" and many other first perform ances of notable operas, and presided over all Wag-nerian operas and other standard German operas on the Metropolitan repertoires. For several summers Hertz conducted at Covent Garden, London, and elsewhere abroad. In 1915 Hertz accepted an invitation to take the leadership of the San Francisco Symphony, with which he has since remained the conductor. In recent summers he has also conducted orchestra con-certs at the Hollywood Bowl.

PIETRO CIMINI

Maestro Pietro Cimini was born in Bologna, Italy, and received his musical education in the Conservatory of that artistic center. After being graduated with the degree of Master of Music, he made his first appearance as conductor in the Costanzi Theatre in Rome. After conducting in many of the foremost theatres of Italy, Maestro Cimini was engaged as conductor-in-chief of the Imperial Opera of Warsaw, filling that position from 1909 until the outbreak of the war. In 1922 he came to the United States to fill a conductorship with the Chicago Grand Opera and in that office has toured the principal cities of the country. ELSA ALSEN

ELSA ALSEN

Elsa Alsen, guest artist of the Chicago Opera Company, has made a high place for herself with the American public by her effective, highly sensitized impersonations of Isolde, Brunnhilde and other Wagnerial roles. The singer was born in Russian Poland, of a Norwegian father and a French mother, and inherited her musical talent from both sides of her family. She began her studies at the age of seventeen at Breslau and started her career as a church and concert singer. Making her debut as Azucena in Trovatore she won instantaneous success in that role through the chief cities of Germany. It was after these triumphs as a contralto that Mme. Alsen's voice developed into the fine dramatic soprano that it is today. Mme. Alsen has an immense repertory ranging from Azucena, Delila, Carmen and all the roles of Wagner. This is Mme. Alsen's first appearance with the San Francisco Opera Association.

FRANCES PERALTA

Frances Peralta, whose private name is Miss Phyllis Partington, comes of an old English family, members of which are associated with the pioneer history of San Francisco, where Miss Peralta was born and educated. Her father, the late J. H. E. Partington, was a portrait painter of note, and Miss Partington's art inheritance is shared generally by her generation of the family. Miss Peralta received her vocal training from Victor Maurel, the great baritone, and Jose Mardones, Spanish basso of the Metropolitan, with which company she has been singing for the last six years, her debut following on a tour throughout the country with Antonio Scotti's Grand Opera Company, wherein she achieved the éclat in principal roles that she has so enhanced in her subsequent career as a Metropolitan star soprano.

Reputation

OUR reputation has been made by playing the game fairly; by giving the worth of a dollar for a dollar; by a cheerful co-operation under very trying conditions; by carrying on in the face of difficulties; by doing our level best at all times, and by being resolute enough to own up to our mistakes.

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI

GIOVANNI MARTINELLI

Giovanni Martinelli's musical career began in his native city of Milan, where, after studying under the distinguished vocal instructor, Guiseppe Mandolini, he made his debut at the Dal Verme in the title role of Verdi's "Ernani." The next year Martinelli toured Italy in a production of the composer's "La Fanciulla del West," winning such applause as Dick Johnson, that he received invitations to sing in many of the leading cities of Europe. Following these triumphs came an engagement offer from the Metropolitan Opera Company in 1913. Frequent appearances in concert and opera in Europe, Cuba, and South America from 1914 on, have made his name world-famous. In 1920 he did the first performance of Rossini's "William Tell" in thirty years, either in America or Europe. Previously he was a lyric tenor. In essaying this robust role, which was the great Tamagno's own, he did the "impossible" and changed over-night to the dramatic tenor category. Today, he is considered alone in these roles. Martinelli made his debut with Zerda at Palo Alto in 1922, and also sang with the San Francisco Opera Company the following year.

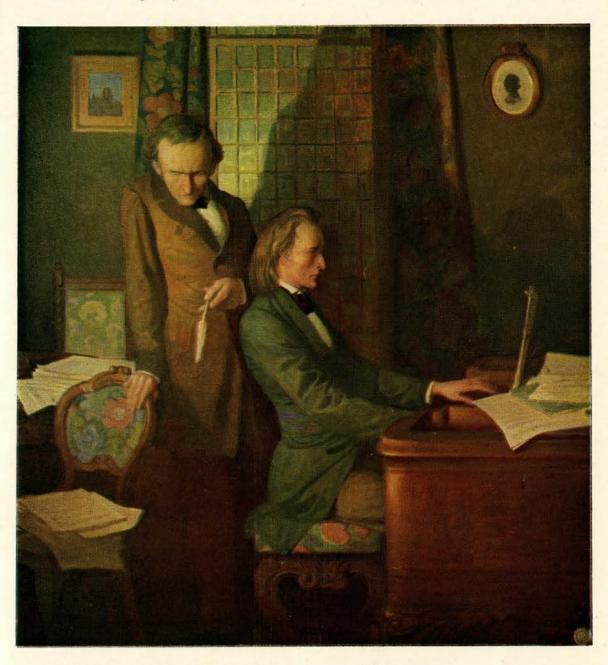

RUDOLF LAUBENTHAL

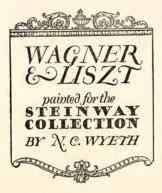

Rudolf Laubenthal, the German-born tenor, is a recent addition to the roster of the Metropolitan Opera Company. He has brought to this country an envi-able prestige, acquired in Wagnerian roles in perform-ances at Covent Garden, London, and since his American stay has inspired public enthusiasm as a soloist with the New York Symphony and other similar leading organizations here, the critics uniting in applauding his dramatic bearing and consummate mastery of a voice of appealing warmth and unforced vocal plentitude. Laubenthal will be heard this coming season of the Metropolitan as Siegfried, Tristan and other Wagnerian roles, and has also been engaged for the next spring season at Covent Garden to sing the same roles. This is the German singer's first appearance with the San Francisco Opera Company. He will make his debut here in what is perhaps his most applauded impersonation, that of Tristan.

STEINWAY - THE INSTRU

I am a sincere admirer of all fine pianos, of which indeed, there are several. But the piano in my home as in my professional work, is the STEINWAY. Its beautiful tone, its agreeable action, its almost human sympathy with the moods of the player, are such that I hope I shall never be without my STEINWAY. The musical

The DUO-ART reproducing p

QUESTION: What is the Duo-Art Reproducing Piano?

ANSWER: It is a piano similar to any Steinway, Weber, Geo. Steck, or Stroud piano that you know, but capable also of rendering the exact playing of the world's outstanding pianists without anyone seated at the keyboard. We could hear Franz Liszt himself, today, had the Duo-Art existed in his time!

Q.—Does it play only the formal compositions of concert pianists?

A.—No, indeed. It plays all kinds of enjoyable music, exactly as skilled performers would render such music in person on the piano in your home. For instance, you can hear complete Grand Operas, "Pagliacci," "La Boheme," "Cavalleria Rusticana," "Il Trovatore," "La Tosca," "Aida," "Carmen." Or you can hear nocturnes, concertos, ballads or the gayest of dance music.

2.—How does the Duo-Art reproducing piano accomplish this?

A.—By means of master-made rolls, electrically impelled, and so cunningly devised that the slightest touch, alteration of emphasis, or shade of expression on the part of the original pianist is re-created for you exactly as the master played it.

Q.—Is this not the "player roll" of the customary "player piano?"

A.—Indeed, no. Ordinary rolls depend upon someone at the key-board to manipulate knobs and levers to give the expression they require, and this interpretation is, of course, different from that of the original artist. But Duo-Art rolls glide through the Duo-Art piano without anybody's guidance, and the melody they produce is the exact rendition of the melody in every detail as it was originally evoked by the master musician. We repeat, it is the exact rendition. As the artist played, so you will hear. And the artist is some recognized master.

Q.—If these Duo-Art rolls are so surpassing, can they not be played enjoyably on any ordinary "player piano" or reproducing piano?

A.—The result would be a jargon of meaningless notes. Duo-Art rolls can accomplish their mission only upon Duo-Art pianos.

Q.—The term Duo-Art, then, refers not only to a great system of master-made rolls, but essentially to the instrument that plays them?

MENT OF THE IMMORTALS

history of this age could not be what it is, if the world of musicians in concert stage or studio, or the lovers of music in the homes, had not possessed the inspiration of the STEINWAY.

iano comes in the STEINWAY

A.—Yes. It is the Steinway, or Geo. Steck, or Stroud, or Weber pianoforte, upright or grand, that has been built for playing these particular artist-made rolls.

Q.—Is the playing of these rolls all that a Duo-Art piano can do?

A.—By no means. Your Duo-Art is first of all a piano, and as such can be played by your own fingers whenever you desire. But it is far more than a piano, for it will bring the actual playing of notable pianists right into your home. It is not only a piano, but it is the whole world of piano music, made available to you at your instant command.

Q.—You mention "notable pianists." To whom do you refer?

A.—Practically any great living pianist whom you can name. Paderewski, of course, and Hofmann, Bauer, Gabrilowitsch, Cortot, Ignaz Friedman, Percy Grainger—the list is very long, and very interesting. You will undoubtedly be rewarded by examining a full copy of this great roster, which is without parallel in the piano world. Ask Sherman, Clay & Co. for the great list. These artists make rolls for no other system than the Duo-Art.

Q.—Is there a good-sized collection of the rolls of these important masters available?

A.—Hundreds upon hundreds of master made Duo-Art rolls have been created, constituting a very large catalog; and these are being added to during every month of every year.

2.—Not everyone in my family cares for "classic" playing. Some of us like to sing, to dance, to hear ballads and jazz itself. Does the Duo-Art do anything for such tastes?

A.—The Duo-Art recognizes that piano music is a very broad subject and its roster of notable pianists includes not Paderewski and Hofmann only, but George Gershwin; not only the great figures of the concert stage but the inimitable pianists of the most famous supper clubs and dance salons along Broadway. And the roster includes, too, such pianists as Robert Armbruster, whose ballads of the Kipling style appeal strongly to men who decline to go to concerts, yet will sit enthralled at home when they can dictate the program. The Duo-Art is everyone's piano. It is of delight to the most serious musician and to the littlest child.

- Q.—Speaking of children, will mine practice if they have a Duo-Art piano in the home?
- A.—To be familiar with good music is to love it. The Duo-Art cultivates a musical ear, because it makes possible the frequent playing in the home of the best in music, played as the artists play it. Paderewski himself, and Alfred Hertz, conductor of the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra, are but two of the many musical authorities who are impressed with the power of the Duo-Art for inspiring little fingers.
 - 2.—The Duo-Art is a positive aid to the musical training of children?
- A.—It is positively one of the greatest agencies for the promotion of a musical ambition in young people that the world has even seen. The truth of this is being proved, time and time again, in countless homes; and the Duo-Art has been adopted by many leading academies of music as an outstanding aid to the teacher.
 - Q.—Are Duo-Art pianos expensive?
- A.—By no means. They give what kings, by royal command, could not acquire; the instant performance of tens and scores of skilled masters, exponents of every field of piano-playing, as often as desired. The upright, electrically-operated Stroud Duo-Art is only $1095; and the various sizes of Geo. Steck, Weber and Steinway Duo-Art grands are suited to a wide variety of homes, purses and tastes. A cash deposit will obtain for your household the Duo-Art of your needs; the balance may be arranged over a convenient term of years.
 - Q.—Is any other reproducing method available in the Steinway?
- A.—The Duo-Art reproducing instrumentality is the ONLY reproducing medium accepted by Steinway & Sons as worthy of inclusion within "The Instrument of the Immortals."
 - Q.—What is the best way of learning more about the Duo-Art?
- A.—By calling at Sherman, Clay & Co. at your convenience, with as many friends as you wish, and hearing the masters themselves evoking immortal music as you request. There is no obligation implied by such a visit. And you will be the richer for the experience—for an unforgettable hour so spent in the presence of these masters.

When you cannot use your Season Tickets

If it should happen that you are prevented from using your season seat for any performance, do not let the ticket go to waste. There are many deserving music students who would appreciate the opportunity to attend the opera but who cannot afford to do so. The Women's Auxiliary of the San Francisco Opera Association has a list of such students by whom seats would be much appreciated. When you cannot use your ticket telephone to Miss Edith Livermore, Prospect 2624, and she will see that it gets into the hands of an appreciative guest.

FLORENCE MACBETH

ANNE ROSELLE

Miss Roselle's birthplace is the great musical centre of Budapest, and her voice and gifts of impersonation in opera received there the early recognition they deserved. At the age of twelve she was accepted as a pupil of the Budapest Opera School. In 1920 Miss Roselle was engaged by Antonio Scotti for his opera company, and then by the Metropolitan. Since her connection with the latter company she has passed from one triumph to another, singing in all the chief opera houses of Europe, with a climax of these many honors in her recent presentation of the Princess in Puccini's "Turandot" at the Dresden Opera House, and the Berlin Staatsoper. The roles in which Miss Roselle appears in the repertoire of the San Francisco Opera Company this season are those in which she particularly excels. She has a voice of rare carrying power and brilliance and possesses a commanding stage presence.

FLORENCE MACBETH

Miss Macbeth's career has been particularly interesting by reason of the fact that she started virtually at the top and has never sung anything but leading roles. Her musical education was received from the noted vocal instructor, Yeatman Griffith, and she made her début as a concert singer with the Lamoureux Orchestra at Darmstadt, Germany, and later sang in a number of the continental opera houses as star and guest soprano. Returning to this country, she made her first American appearance as Rosina in "The Barber of Seville" with the Chicago Opera Company in 1914. During that and successive seasons she continued to score signal favor as Juliette, Mimi, and a great variety of other coloratura and lyric personations. In New York, during two of the Chicago Company's seasons there, Miss Macbeth's Rosina, and her Ophelia in "Hamlet", created little less than a sensation. For the last four years the singer has also been leading coloratura of the Ravinia Opera Company. Her position among American prima donnas has been steadily maintained, and her career has served as inspiration to other American girls of talent.

This is the second consecutive season that Miss Macbeth has sung with the San Francisco Opera Company.

ANNE ROSELLE

"The popularity of Lucky Strikes among those who sing is because these cigarettes never irritate the throat, also because they give greater enjoyment."

Antonio Scotti, Baritone

This great artist recommends Lucky Strike
—Because "It's Toasted"

ANTONIO SCOTTI, the famous Italian baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York City, is very careful of his voice and therefore recommends Lucky Strikes.

Lucky Strikes have become the favorites of men whose priceless voices thrill their audiences, as they have with the millions, because, first, they afford greater enjoyment and second, they are certain not to irritate even the most sensitive throat.

Smoke Lucky Strikes. They give added pleasure—you'll like them.

MARIO CHAMLEE

ARMAND TOKATYAN

Tokatyan, youngest of Metropolitan lyric tenors, is another example of how quickly real vocal gift finds another example of how quickly real vocal gift linds its recognition from the American public. His birth-place is Bulgaria, whither his parents fled from massacres in Constantinople, and much of his youth has been passed in Egypt. There Tokatyan got his education, which includes a remarkable mastery of language and him a supplier of the property of the care of the conditions of the property of the care of the c guages. Besides speaking fluently Arabic, Armenian, Turkish, Italian and Greek, Tokatyan has lately added to his linguistic attainments a thorough knowledge of French and English. Tokatyan's first appearance in grand opera was with the Cairo Opera Company in 1919, the director of this company having discovered the beauty of this boy's voice and induced him to make grand opera his profession. Subsequently, after studying in Milan, he made his Italian début in Puc-cini's "Manon" at the Dal Verme in Milan. He has now been four years with the Metropolitan Opera Company where he has an unchallenged niche of his own.

Early success of a most signal kind, followed by ever-increasing honors, has marked the career of the Los Angeles born singer, Mario Chamlee. He is one of Antonio Scotti's discoveries. That eminent baritone and impresario heard him as a mere youth singing in a New York motion picture theatre and, carried away by his rich tenor voice, immediately engaged him for his touring opera company. His rare successes with the Scotti Opera Company resulted, after his discharge from the American Expeditionary Forces in France, in a contract, in 1920, with the Metropolitan Opera Company. Since his notable début as Cavaradossi in "La Tosca" at the Metropolitan, Chamlee has sung on its stage numberless roles wherein he has charmed the public by both the warm lyricism of his voice and the versatility of his natural acting. For the last five years Chamlee has also been a member of the Ravinia Park Opera Company, and his frequent appearances during the season there attest his popularity with a discriminating musical public. This is his first appearance with the San Francisco Opera Company.

Music and the Business Man

Reasons are becoming apparent, even to the least enlightened of our musically inclined, that good music exerts an influence to ends other than giving pleasure to mankind. Its power to soothe and to stimulate are admitted facts. Quite recently the business man has made a discovery. He has learned to his financial profit that it keeps imagination above par, that it serves to awaken that faculty when it slumbers too long, and (since it actually has so operated) that good music may even develop imagination in minds where it seemed non-existent. There are also economic values: the wholesome use of increased leisure which laborsaving, distance-consuming and time-saving devices are bringing to all. Finally, there is the crowning benefit of music's aesthetic influence. No nation committed entirely to commercialism survives for long.

INA BOURSKAYA

INA BOURSKAYA

Ina Bourskaya, the Russian mezzo-soprano, is an outstanding instance of quickly recognized talent. She was a prime favorite of Petrograd opera-goers in the Romanoff regime. Then, on the establishment of Bolshevist rule, she left Russia as a member of the Russian Opera Company, touring the Far East with it, and, in 1921, came to the United States with that organization. Her American début was rewarded by an immediate acknowledgment of her exceptional powers as an artist. Struck by her pronounced talent, Gaetano Merola, director-general of the San Francisco Opera Association, engaged her for the name role of "Carmen" in his open-air opera production at Palto Alto in 1922. Since that time she has had steady engagements with the Metropolitan, the Ravinia and all the great operatic institutions of the country. It is this singer's special achievement that she is uncircumscribed in her range of roles. These are almost numberless, and in them all she displays the same extraordinary ability to grasp their essence and completely to submerge her own personality in them. It is rare to find such actress talent combined with Madame Bourskaya's yocal fitness.

KATHRYN MEISLE

Miss Meisle comes of distinguished German ancestry, some of her forebears emigrating to this country in 1840. She is herself a native of Philadelphia, and is proud of the fact that her musical education has been entirely American. At sixteen, while a student at the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music, Miss Meisle had an opportunity to sing contralto solos in a local church choir, the beauty of her voice attracting the attention of professionals who urged her to prepare for concert and opera. Her début on the concert stage was as soloist with the Minneapolis Orchestra in 1921 and after rapidly acquiring fame in that field she accepted a first operatic engagement, in 1923, with the Chicago Civic Opera, where she attained an extraordinary initial success as Erda in "Siegfried." Two years later Miss Meisle was invited to sing leading contralto parts with the San Francisco Opera Company and its sister organization of Los Angeles, her appearances being attended by rare ovations due both to her vocality and histrionism. She is the possessor of a voice of true contralto quality, of exceptional range and flexibility.

La Cena delle Beffe

"La Cena delle Beffe", or "The Jesters' Supper", has a seizing episode of fifteenth century Florence as its theme, and is a newcomer on the American opera stage. Under the name of "The Jest" it was given as a drama by the Barrymore brothers on Broadway, New York, some years ago. Like Puccini's operas "La Cena delle Beffe" offers the most tempting opportunities for actor singers, and its great success, as an example of the modern Italian school, is due as much to the fine character interpretation with which it has been rendered as to its music. The work is by the famous Italian composer, Umberto Giordano, and the four act libretto by Sem Benelli. "La Cena delle Beffe" was a frequent piece in the repertoire of the Metropolitan Opera Company last season, and is being presented in San Francisco this year for the first time.

PASQUALE AMATO

Pasquale's singing romance has carried him far; throughout Italy to Germany, Paris, London, Brazil, the Argentine, Chile, and finally New York, where both he and his noble voice are so well loved. The Metropolitan star baritone was born in Naples, and, in 1900, made his début in that city, at the Teatro Bellini as Germont in "Traviata." After triumphant appearances in various leading opera houses of Italy he sang for several seasons in Paris and London, and for six seasons in Buenos Aires and other cities of South America. In 1908 he became a member of the Metropolitan Opera Company, where he quickly established himself as a prime favorite of New York opera-lovers by his performances of Figaro and other toles requiring the histrionic gift Amato possesses to so notable a degree. Among the operas in which he created leading baritone parts are Puccini's "Girl of the Golden West", and Damrosch's "Cyrano." He also appeared in first American performances of "Pellias et Melisande" and "L'Amore del tre Re." Among the grand ovations given the singer was that in Havana at the close of an 1918 season. Among Amato's linguistic accomplishments is singing in German as well as French, Italian and Spanish.

Antonio Scotti

Antonio Scotti is the patrician among baritones and one of the most famous of living actor singers. Wherever opera is known, the name of Scotti is revered and loved, for he has been identified with the greatest operatic achievements in this country and Europe. A great friend of the late Caruso, they were inseparable companions and made many records of great operatic duets together. The last time Scotti was heard here, he was at the head of his own organization known as the Scotti Grand Opera Company. As Baron Scarpia in Puccini's "La Tosca" is not only acknowledged to be supreme but may be said to prempt the part by right of priority in its interpretation. It was he who sang the Baron when, after having its signal debut in 1900 in Rome and London, "La Tosca" was initially produced, the following year, at the Metropolitan Opera House, where he invariably sings the role whenever the work is given. Equally famous is his personation of Sir John in Verdi's "Falstaff", demanding that declamato gift Scotti possesses to such an eminent degree.

EZIO PINZA

Ezio Pinza, of Italian birth, is one of the youngest singers of the day occupying a prominent position in the operatic world. After making his début in his native land, Pinza was immediately engaged for principal baritone opera roles by Arturo Toscanini of La Scala, Milan, where he sang three years. In 1926 he accepted an offer of the Metropolitan Opera Company to take Mardones' place and is at present a member of that organization. Pinza has appeared in leading opera personations in Buenos Aires, Rio de Janeiro and other cities of South America, enjoying there the popularity he has achieved with the opera-going public of this country. In addition to a superb voice the young Metropolitan star possesses acting gifts that make his characterizations on the opera stage a rare delight.

LAWRENCE TIBBETT

This California born singer enjoys the distinction of being the youngest baritone star of the opera stage. While still in his early twenties Tibbett left Los Angeles to seek his fortunes in New York, where he obtained an engagement with the Metropolitan Opera Company. He had been with that company only a few months when he was given the role of Ford in Verdi's "Falstaff." His début performance of that part was so finely rendered that it created a furore almost unparalleled in the history of the Metropolitan. Suddenly thrust into fame, Tibbett has justified the favor shown him by the public through his brilliant characterization of Neri in Giardano's "La Cena delle Beffe" and other main roles that demand the histrionic ahilities Tibbett pre-eminently displays in addition to masterly vocal executions. Tibbett is equally a favorite of the concert stage. This is his first appearance with the San Francisco Opera Company.

Falstaff

"Falstaff" is the last offspring of Verdi's prolific genius and the only one of a comedy nature. Although written when the composer was on the verge of his eighties, it has all the fire and force of his highest art. Indeed, in the opinion of some critics it ranks first among Verdi's masterpieces and is unequalled by any humorous grand opera ever penned. The text, supplied by his fellow composer, Boito, is adaptation of Shakespeare's "Many Wives" and "Henry IV", and rings with the rollicking spirit of the former play. It was given its first performance in Milan in 1893. with the title role filled by Maurel, who also appeared in its next year American debut at the Metropolitan, Eames, Scalchi, de Lussan and Companari taking the other leading parts.

Romeo et Juliette

Gounod's "Romeo et Juliette" is bracketed with his "Faust" in popularity with the public. It is full of enchanting melody and, except in a few details, faithfully follows the action of Shakespeare's play. The first production of the work was given at the Theatre Lyrique, Paris, in 1867, and after being heard at the Covent Garden, London, and La Scala, Milan, the same year, was presented in the United States in 1868, with Minnie Hauk in the role of Juliette. During its innumerable American presentations such great artists as Patti, Eames, the de Reszkes, Melba, Plancon, with scores of others, have immortalized its melting lyrics. No season's repertoire seems complete without this gem of love-music.

Cavalleria Rusticana and I Pagliacci

These inseparables of the opera-stage enjoy a perennial favor with the public that no other work of either of the two composers has succeeded in attaining. Both works achieve the heights in dramatic intensity, into which a like spirit of fate strikes the dominant chord. Mascagni's one act piece had its first performance in Rome in 1890, and its American debut took place at Philadelphia the following year. Its prodigious instant success rescued the composer from the hardships which had surrounded his earlier years and brought him the most dazzling tributes at the hands of his countrymen. Leoncavallo's work was given the world two years after Mascagni's and had a prior association with it in having been unsuccessfully submitted in a contest in which "Cavalleria Rusticana" was awarded the first prize. "I Pagliacci", of which the text is also by the composer, was equally instrumental in bringing fortune to Mascagni, who was as poverty-straitened as his rival.

England's First Opera

England's first opera was performed in 1656. It was entitled the "Siege of Rhodes" and was composed by five persons in collaboration.

GIUSEPPE PAPI

Giuseppe Papi, Chorus Master of the San Francisco Opera Association, was born in Italy and there began his notable career as a trainer of opera choruses, a work to which he has devoted twenty-seven yeras. He made his first success in 1904 conducting the chorus of "William Tell" at the Dal Vermo, Milan. He was engaged the next season as chorus master of the Comunale Theatre, Bologna. During the years 1914-16 Papi held the position of chorus master at La Scala in Milan, after which he accepted an engagement in the same capacity with The Colon of Buenos Aires for the following five years. At present he fills the post of Chorus Master at the San Carlos Theatre, Naples, where his work last year included the training of its choral force for "Turandot", on its début performance in that city. Under Giuseppe Papi's inexhaustible enthusiasm, efficiency and force of personality, the Chorus School of the San Francisco Opera Association has become a model institution of its kind.

VERA FREDOWA

Vera Fredowa, première ballerina of the Theodore Kosloff Ballet, appearing with the San Francisco Opera Company, has been closely associated with Theodore Kosloff for the past ten years, both as his dancing partner and as directrice of the schools of the dance in Los Angeles and San Francisco. Mme. Fredowa made three tours of the United States with Theodore Kosloff as his partner and première danseuse, appearing in "Russian Melodies", "The Legend of Tatary", "The Romance of the Infanta", "Sheherazade", and other productions, and when the latter came to California to appear in motion pictures and at the same time open his Imperial Russian Ballet School in Los Angeles, he appointed Mme. Fredowa as directice. Last year, upon the opening of the larger Kosloff Studio in San Francisco, she came here.

Mme. Fredowa was seen here during the opera season of last year in "Aida" and "Samson and Delilah"; this year she will appear in "Aida" and "Carmen."

THEODORE KOSLOFF

Theodore Kosloff was born in Moscow, Russia. His father was a violinist, concert master in the orchestra of the Imperial Grand Theatre of Moscow. His grandfather before him had held the same position. At the age of eight Theodore Kosloff entered the Imperial Theatrical School of Moscow and commenced his career as a dancer. The training period was ten years, and at eighteen Theodore Kosloff graduated from the Moscow school with the rank of premier danseur and gold medal for highest honors. Through powerful influence he was allowed to go to Petrograd and take the final year in the school there, so he holds graduation honors from both cities. After dancing on the stage at the Imperial Theatre for several years, Theodore Kosloff was invited to go to Paris with Serge de Diagieleff's "Ballet Russe", which, after its first season there set London and America "Russian mad." In that original company were Mmes. Geltzer, Pavlowa, Karsavina, Baldina (now Mrs. Theodore Kosloff), Feodorova, and Mm. Nijinsky, Mordkin, Theodore Kosloff, Alexis Kosloff, Fokine, Bolm and a corps de ballet of the best and most enterprising of all the dancers of the Imperial Theatre.

Thereon followed two brilliant London seasons with his own company; and then in 1911 Kosloff came to America for the first time, where after many successful theatrical seasons with his own ballets, he entered upon his motion picture career and opened his now fa-mous Imperial Russian Ballet Schools in Los Angeles and San Francisco. While sojourning in California, Mr. Kosloff has produced many big ballets both for stage and screen.

THE CHORUS SCHOOL

It is a source of pride to the San Francisco Opera Association that it maintains its own Chorus School, in which the members, enjoying remuneration for the time they devote to study, receive vocal training, instruction in languages and histrionic drill under the ablest direction.

From those members of the school who have completed at least one full term, the entire personnel of the company's chorus is annually selected. Many of these are now singing with the company in minor roles for their fifth season.

Auditions are held each spring and a limited number of new candidates accepted. No candidates for the season are admitted after the spring enrollment. There are no tuition fees. The term is approximately six months. The selection of those for minor roles in the season's repertoire of the company is made by competition and takes place in mid-term under the direction of Gaetano Merola, Director-General of the Association, and Guiseppe Papi, Chorus Master, the successful competitors receiving intensive instruction. The selected chorus is then compensated for further rehearsals and all operatic performances in which the members participate. A number of graduates that received their foundation work in the chorus are now pursuing further study abroad.

The school is under the personal supervision of Gaetano Merola. Vocal instruction is by Guiseppe Papi; lessons in languages (French and Italian) are given by U. Caiati, Registrar and Librarian of the Association; dramatic instruction by Armando Agnini.
