Tradition

ONCE UPON A TIME, when the cultural community of San Francisco began, there was founded, in 1868, the firm of Goldstein & Company, who since that date has been synonymous with thoughts of correct and beautiful costuming. • Starting on Montgomery Street, Goldstein & Company moved to Stockton Street, then to Howard Street, and in 1894 and since that time, on Market Street. We not only have served many great producers and artists, but have brought the name of San Francisco and its Costumer to the entire United States. One of the oldest firms in America in the costume business, it has progressed in its proud assertion, "If it is a costume, we have it." • Proudly have we served San Francisco through many generations, through seasons of the Mid-winter Fair. Woodward's Gardens, the Adelphi, the Bush Street, Columbia, Wigwam, Grand Opera House, Baldwin, Morosco and Tivoli Theatres. • Such names as Tetrazzini, Caruso, Chauncy Olcott, Madeline Brautard, Avedano, Calemenori, Patti, Sollasso, Ferris Hartman, McKee Rankin, James Brophy, Margaret Anglin and Max Reinhardt have been our patrons. Down through the generations, with many glorious names on our roster, we have participated in the history and progress of San Francisco. • In the year 1922 a Master arrived! Persistently, he arranged for the productions of Grand Opera at Stanford University in its Athletic Bowl. In 1923 a repetition; then in 1924 at the San Francisco Civic Auditorium. San Francisco, ever Opera conscious and progressive, charmed this man who became instrumental in fostering the idea of an ideal Opera House. His dream is now a reality. • Today another dream comes true. The fifteenth successive opera season, sponsored by San Franciscans, places before the world the name of the founder of this organization, Maestro Gaetano Merola. It places before the world a great Stage Director, Armando Agnini. It places before the world of Grand Opera a most capable and artistic production, vocally, scenically and musically, and it has afforded Goldstein & Company the opportunity to present a magnificent array of beautiful costuming. • If you have found us worthy of having pleased your eye as to beauty, your knowledge as to authenticity, we have accomplished a great deal. • As we have served the pioneer fathers and mothers of San Francisco, and are now serving the present generation, we take this opportunity of thanking our many friends, for their kindnesses, wishing them as glorious a future as has been brilliant their past.

In presenting the San Francisco Opera Company in its Fourteenth Annual Season, the San Francisco Opera Association makes a distinct departure from the procedure of previous seasons by giving two separate groups of performances, a Regular Subscription Series and a series of Three Popular Saturday Nights. The officers of the Opera Association, in determining upon the popular Saturday night series, were actuated by the knowledge that there is a vast number of music lovers who have not been attendants of the San Francisco Opera Company performances, and the desire to develop new audiences from that number. The gratifying response to the new series fully warrants their seasonable continuance.

THE STORY

ACT I

Eleazar, a Jew goldsmith, has reared Rachel as his daughter. She is not his child but the daughter of Cardinal de Brogni, president of the Council of Constance. As an officer of Rome, Brogni at an earlier day had burned Eleazar's two boys as heretics and banished the father. Eleazar's revenge was to snatch De Brogni's babe from his burning palace and bring her up as a Jewess. Prince Leopold of Austria, married to Princess Eudoxia, has wooed the now grown up Rachel adopting the guise of Samuel, a Jewish painter. It is the time of the Husite War. As the curtain rises the populace gathers to celebrate the victory of Prince Leopold. As Samuel, he mingles with them. The people, enraged at Eleazar for continuing work on the Sabbath, drag him and Rachel from their shop. Cardinal de Brogni intercedes for them. They are again menaced and Leopold rushes to their assistance. He is recognized by an officer who orders the soldiers and populace to desist.

ACT II

Eleazar, with relations and friends, partake of the Passover bread. Leopold, unnoticed by any but Rachel, casts his share away. Princess Eudoxia comes to purchase a jewel-studded chain destined for the neck of the victorious Leopold. Maintaining his guise of Samuel, Leopold confesses to Rachel that he is a Christian but promises to embrace her faith and urges her to flight. They are surprised by Eleazar who condones their purpose. But Leopold, though avowing his love, informs them he cannot marry Rachel.

ACT III

Eleazar and Rachel come to deliver the jeweled chain. Rachel, seeing Leopold at Eudoxia's side, recognizes that he and Samuel, her lover, are the same. Eudoxia places the chain about the neck of Leopold "in honor of you, my husband and lord." Rachel wrests the chain from Leopold and exposes his perfidy. Eleazar demands for him the death decreed the Christian who consorts with a Jewess. The cardinal excommunicates Leopold.

ACT IV

The supreme council is assembled in the council chamber. In the anteroom Eudoxia beseeches Rachel, awaiting sentence, to declare Leopold innocent and save him from the judgement of death. Rachel, giving promise, leaves for the tribunal. The Cardinal enters. Summoning Eleazar he tells the Jew that the lives of Rachel and himself are in their own hands if they will but renounce their faith. Eleazar chooses death, and, crying his vengeance on a Christian, discloses to the Cardinal that his infant was saved from the fire by a Jew and still lives but declares the secret of her whereabouts will die with him. (Scene 2): The populace eagerly awaits the execution. Eleazar is told that a witness worthy of credit has declared Leopold innocent and only he and Rachel are to die. Rachel confesses herself to have been the witness and choosing death as a Jewess to life as a Christian, is led to execution. The Cardinal beseeches Eleazar to disclose the secret of his lost daughter. "She is there," he cries, pointing to Rachel as she is plunged into the boiling caldron.

Guarantor Members

In 1923 the San Francisco Opera Association was founded. For thirteen years, with the assistance of a Founders' Fund of $120,000, it was able to present opera productions comparable to the best in the United States or Europe. With the inauguaration of the 1936 season it became apparent that, if the high standard were to be maintained, it would be necessary to provide an assurance against loss. To meet the emergency a new membership classification of Guarantor Members was established. With the opening of its Fourteenth Annual Season, the San Francisco Opera Association desires to express its sincere appreciation to the following Guarantor Members whose civic mindedness and loyalty to opera have made the season possible:

TIME AND PLACE: Seventeenth Century; in Seville

Act I A Street in Seville, Early Morning
Act II A Room in Doctor Bartolo's House
Act III The same.

Bell rings three minutes before curtain rises. Encores not permitted.

THE STORY

ACT I

Rosina, coveted by her mean and suspicious guardian, Dr. Bartolo, because of her wealth, is so closely watched by him that she is forced, against the dictates of her heart, to appear indifferent to the serenading of an unknown admirer who nightly haunts her window. It is the Count Almaviva deeply in love and masquerading as one Lindoro in order that the glamor of his rank may not influence the girl. The rising curtain discloses the count in his devotional serenade. He is interrupted by the arrival of the loquacious Figaro, barber and general factotum, who recognizes him but is adjured to secrecy. Figaro informs the count that Rosina is not the daughter, as she long thought, but the ward of Dr. Bartolo who plans immediate marriage with her. Rosina appears on the balcony and drops a note to her serenader. Figaro plots that the count shall gain entrance by posing as a billeted drunken soldier.

ACT II

Rosina delights in a note from Almaviva, running from the room with it as Bartolo and Basilio enter. The doctor tells his friend that he intends to marry Rosina. Basilio informs him that Count Almaviva, who has asked for her hand, has arrived but the doctor little suspects the identity of the serenader of the night before. The two plot against the count and plan for the doctor's marriage to Rosina on the morrow. When they leave, Rosina returns with Figaro who playfully torments her about the psuedo Lindoro. He explains the plan of their meeting and leaves to aid in its execution. The doctor, returning, accuses Rosina of writing the note and dropping it from the balcony. She glibly and impertinently denies the evidence he offers and enjoys the taunting of him. They are interrupted by the noisy entrance of the disguised count, pretending to be drunk. The police are called but Almaviva craftily identifies himself and they leave, much to the fury of Bartolo.

ACT III

Through the further conniving of Figaro, Almaviva again gains entrance to Bartolo's house, this time in the guise of a music teacher who pretends he has been sent in place of Basilio whom he reports as being ill. Bartolo suspects that he has seen the man before. To disarm his suspicions the count gives him a note written by Rosina to Lindoro saving that he had found it and offers to use it to convince Rosina that she is being duped. The music lesson begins. Figaro enters insisting over protest that it is his day to shave Bartolo. There is consternation when Basilio, himself, appears. But he is convinced by them all, and especially by a purse from the count, that he really is very ill and must return home. To cover the conversation of the lovers, Figaro continues his shaving and chatter to Bartolo. The doctor, suspicious, suprises the young people in their plotting. Realizing he has again been duped he drives the count from the house. Bartolo then shows Rosina the count's note and the furious girl consents to their immediate marriage. Figaro and Almaviva enter. He makes known his real identity and when Basilio comes with the notary a second purse secures him as a witness to the marriage of Rosina to the count instead of the doctor.
