THE TRIP OF A LIFETIME

Financial responsibilities have always prevented you from taking that trip. Personal responsibilities such as the clipping of coupons when due, the depositing of dividend checks, assembling information for tax purposes, collection of rents, all require constant vigilance.

It is not necessary, however, for you to give your time and attention to these details. An Agency account with The San Francisco Bank would make this trip possible because it would relieve you of personal financial worries.

1923-1947

With this season the San Francisco Opera Association celebrates the twenty-fifth anniversary of the San Francisco Opera Company. It is a most propitious season marking, as it does, a quarter century of progress that has carried the fame of the company throughout the music world.

Founded by a small group who had faith in the music appreciation of San Franciscans, the record of the company has more than justified the soundness of that belief. At the season's close, the company will have given 548 performances of 74 operas.

No other city, with the single exception of New York, can cite such an unbroken record in grand opera. And yet, the San Francisco Opera Company no longer belongs to this city alone, but to the entire Pacific Coast. Annually, a number of these cities look forward to being host to the company. All of this, we feel, is a tribute not alone to the artistry and good management of the company, but to the people of San Francisco whose support has made this accomplishment possible.

The San Francisco Opera Association is grateful for this support and the untiring efforts and genius of Gaetano Merola, General Director of the company since its inception.

Kenneth Monteagle

President

A Will Is Your Voice In The Future

Wartime discoveries pointed the way to improved long-range weather forecasts, but predicting the course of human events, even from hour to hour, remains beyond the scope of science.

Because of this uncertainty, a Will assumes great importance, and in effect, becomes your voice in the future. You cannot know what the future holds for your family, but by making a Will and naming a capable executor and trustee now, you are assured that your estate will be administered by careful, experienced people who will carry out your wishes for the benefit of your heirs.

Without obligation to you, our Trust Officers will be glad to share the benefits of their experience with you and your attorney in a discussion of estate plans.

TO GAETANO MEROLA AND THE MEMBERS OF THE SAN FRANCISCO OPERA ASSOCIATION

On this, the Twenty-fifth Anniversary of Opera in San Francisco, we desire to mark that epoch and to pause and hear, in memory, the hundred arias that have enchanted the music-loving people of San Francisco, and to appraise the renown and distinction which the Opera has brought to the City of San Francisco.

To you, and to the men and women who have made possible this great and graceful contribution to the life of our community, we present at this hour our tribute of praise and offer the warmth of our cordial regard.

Sincerely,

President of the Art Commission

To Gaetano Merola...

The Musical Association of San Francisco happily participates in this 25th Anniversary celebration.

Through your patience, sagacity, and artistic aims the San Francisco Opera has become an institution of lasting value to the collective musical activity of the nation as well as to the audiences of the Pacific Coast.

Your great spirit, manifesting itself in behalf of music which shall have lasting importance to its public, is an asset we pay homage to—with the sincere wish that you will continue to guide us for many years to come.

May the future bring you the fulfillment of your fondest dreams.

Leonora Wood Armsby

Beaulieu Vineyard

BV WINES

BEAULIEU VINEYARD is a family estate . . . located in the lovely Napa Valley of Northern California. Today, as for nearly half a century, we take pride in the quality of our wines. Our 600 acres of vines grow wine grapes of the finest strains. Thus the yield is far lighter than that of grapes of lesser quality.

Our old-world-type of winery has a storage capacity equal to five times our yearly production — thus we have ample facilities to develop our inventory of fine wines in small cooperage until bottle-ripe, and to bin them afterwards.

As a consequence of our painstaking methods, production is limited and our wines are not available everywhere.

FIVE REPRESENTATIVE BEAULIEU VINEYARD WINES

GEORGES DE LATOUR PRIVATE RESERVE CABERNET: An eminent wine, made solely with Cabernet Sauvignon grapes.

BEAULIEU NAPA VALLEY MUSCAT DE FRONTIGNAN: This wine has been acclaimed by experts as the finest dessert wine produced in America. A wine for entertaining.

BEAUMONT: Made with the famous Pinot Noir grapes (original cuttings from Cote d'Or district of France).

BEAUCLAIR: One of the fine white wines of the Napa Valley. Made with Johannesberger Riesling grapes.

BEAUROSE. A light, agreeable vinosé. To be served very chilled. The hostess wine for lunch.

The Story of "Pelleas Et Melisande"

ACT I—Melisande, a mystic maiden with wonderful long yellow hair, sits weeping on the edge of a pond. She is discovered by Golaud, a mighty hunter. He calms her fright and asks her why she weeps. Melisande tells him she has been cruelly treated and has run away. She has lost her crown in the pond but will not let Golaud recover it. Golaud is fascinated and takes her away with him. Scene 2: Genevieve reads a letter to the ailing Arkel. It is to Pelleas from Golaud telling that he has wed a strange maiden, Melisande, but even now, after six months, knows nothing of her. He asks that Pelleas intercede for him and if a light is placed in the tower of the castle overlooking the sea, he will know that his bride will be received. If there is no light he will sail on never to return. Arkel has desired for purposes of state that Golaud, who had lost his first wife, marry Ursula. But accepting the decree of fate, he consents to receive Melisande. Pelleas, a wild and passionate youth, enters and is told to place the light for his brother Golaud. Scene 3: As Genevieve shows Melisande about the grounds of the castle, Pelleas enters. They see a ship sailing out of the darkening sea. Melisande recognizes it as the one in which she had come. It grows darker. Genevieve goes in search of Yniold. Left alone, Pelleas tells Melisande that he plans to leave at morn to attend his sick friend, Marcellus.

ACT II—Pelleas recites the legend of the healing power of "The Blind Men's Well," of which the bottom has never been seen. Melisande looks into the well and wonders if something bright were shining below could it perhaps be seen. She leans over, Pelleas bidding her be careful. Melisande tosses into the air the ring Golaud had given her. It falls into the well as the noon hour is heard to strike. Scene 2: Golaud tells Melisande of the strange incidents attending his accident while hunting. Just as he had counted the last stroke of the twelve o'clock bell, he related, his horse, suddenly and without apparent cause, had bolted in fright. His injuries, however, are not serious. He begs Melisande not to weary herself when she attempts to administer to his wants. She bursts into tears and at his anxious inquiry, tells him she is not happy. Golaud asks if it is because of Pelleas whom, he has noticed, seldom speaks of her. It is not Pelleas, she answers, but the continued gloom of the castle. Consoling her, he takes her hand and sees that his marriage ring is not upon her finger. He asks where it is. Only that morning, she tells him, when on the shore gathering shells for Yniold the ring had slipped off and the tide had come in before she could find it. Golaud commands her to go in search for it at once despite the night, telling her that the ring has a potent value of which she does not know. Melisande is frightened and goes out weeping. Scene 3: Pelleas and Melisande arrive at the grotto but, having brought no light, decide to await the rising moon before entering. Pelleas describes the grotto, telling Melisande that she must explore it well. The moon lights the grotto entrance disclosing three sleeping paupers. Melisande, frightened, begs Pelleas to take her away.

ACT III—Melisande sings as she combs her hair by the window. Pelleas, passing beneath, asks her to bend down that he might behold her hair unbound. He is enchanted with her beauty and asks that she lean further out so that he may kiss her hand—but he can not yet reach it with his lips. Melisande leans further and her mass of golden hair streams down and envelops him. In ecstasy he folds her tresses about him. Golaud comes upon the scene and, laughing nervously, chides them for playing like children in the dark. Scene 2: Golaud leads Pelleas into the stagnant vaults of the castle where the air is putrid with death. "Do you see that chasm?" he asks. Pelleas, sickened by the stifling stench, demands that they go into the open air. Scene 3: Pelleas is relieved and thankfully compares the brightness of the scene to the dark dankness of the cavern. Golaud then tells him that he has observed that there might be something between him and Melisande and commands that he avoid her, but not too pointedly. Scene 4: Yniold, questioned by Golaud, tells him that Pelleas and Melisande are often together and once he had seen them kiss. A light is seen in Melisande's window. Golaud lifts Yniold up so that the boy can see within. He tells Golaud that Pelleas is with Melisande but that they do not speak or do anything except sadly look at each other. Golaud lifts him down and they depart.

ACT IV—Pelleas regretfully informs Melisande that Arkel has commanded him to undertake a voyage and that he intends to obey. They make a farewell appointment and separate. Melisande returns with Arkel. He has a premonition that Melisande has not long to live and tells her how much he has pitied her through the depressing months of his illness. He sees only innocence in her eyes but Golaud, entering furiously, believes her guilty. He upbraids her in a torrent of bitter words and, grasping her by the hair, pulls her back and forth roughly. Arkel interferes and Golaud, declaring that he will leave confirmation of his suspicions to chance, strides madly from the room. Scene 2: Pelleas and Melisande, who is late, meet at the well. They declare their mutual love but in their rapture overstay the time and the doors of the castle are heard closing. Golaud, who has been watching, rushes upon them. Sensing death at his hands, Pelleas and Melisande despairingly embrace. Golaud strikes down Pelleas as Melisande flees in terror.

ACT V—Melisande is now the mother of a child and her life hangs by a thread. Golaud, remorseful, now knows that Melisande was innocent and begs her forgiveness. Listlessly she grants it. The serving women enter and Melisande quietly passes away. Old King Arkel takes his great-grandchild in his arms declaring: "A life is ended, a life begins."

The Story of "Romeo and Juliet"

ACT I—The house of Capulet is en fete. A masked ball is being given for the entrance of Juliet into society. Capulet introduces his daughter to the assembled guests and all leave for the banquet hall. Romeo, Mercutio, Benvolio and others of the Montagues, in mask and bent on youthful frolic, enter. Juliet returns to the ballroom with her nurse, Gertrude. The intruders hide themselves. Gertrude is sent back to the banquet hall and Juliet is about to follow but is restrained by Romeo, entranced by her beauty. It is love at first sight. Their love banter is interrupted by the hot-headed Tybalt. He recognizes Romeo through his mask and denounces him, vowing vengeance. Romeo is about to draw his sword but is cautioned by Mercutio. Tybalt is restrained by Capulet and an open break is averted.

ACT II—Romeo ascends to Juliet's balcony. Juliet comes from her chamber and the long love scene begins. It is interrupted by Gregorio and Capulet retainers who have been warned of an intruder. Finding no one, they depart in anger. The lovers continue in bliss until Gertrude warns of the approaching dawn.

ACT III—Romeo, entering the cell of Friar Laurent, tells of his love for Juliet and their desire for a clandestine marriage. Juliet soon follows and the Friar, seeing in their union a healing of the feud between the two houses, performs the ceremony. (Scene 2) Stephano, in search of Romeo, sings an impudent song before the house of Capulet. It brings Gregorio in fury into the street. Stephano continues his taunting and in the general fighting which follows, both Capulets and Montagues coming upon the scene, Mercutio is wounded by Tybalt, who in turn, is killed by Romeo. The Duke of Verona, with his retinue, arrives. Romeo is sentenced to exile and escaping death only that he fought fairly, vows to see Juliet once more at all hazards.

ACT IV—Romeo has found a way into Capulet's house and comes to bid Juliet goodby. Juliet pardons him the death of Tybalt and their farewells continue throughout the night. (Scene 2) Capulet, with Friar Laurent, comes to tell Juliet that her marriage with Paris must straightaway take place. The Friar, when she would protest, cautions Juliet to silence. Capulet departs and the Friar, staying her desperate hand and descending dagger, gives Juliet a phial containing a potion which he tells her will cause a sleep resembling death for two and forty hours and admonishes that she take it at the hour of the marriage.

ACT V—Romeo forces his way into the Capulet vault. Perceiving the body of Juliet on her tomb and believing her dead, he drinks poison. Juliet, the effects of the sleeping potion having worn off, arouses. It is too late. Romeo, tottering, tells her of his fatal draught. Juliet, drawing his dagger from its sheath, pierces her breast and the houses of Capulet and Montague are united in death.

KORBEL BRUT IS TOPS IN AMERICAN CHAMPAGNE

For well over half a century, Korbel has been one of the great names in American Champagne; it won the highest award at the Panama-Pacific Exposition in 1915; its consistent high quality, since Repeal, has earned it a unique place among the sparkling wines of this country.

Legally, there are two sorts of wine which can be labelled "Champagne" in the United States. The less expensive and less fine is made by the "cuvee close," or bulk fermentation process; superior Champagne, on the other hand, is fermented in the bottle, and the slow, laborious method used in the Korbel Winery is in all respects identical with that followed in the French Champagne cellars of Epernay and Reims.

The Korbel vineyards, still surrounded by Redwoods, are in the Russian River Valley, some fifty miles north of San Francisco and not far from the northern edge of Sonoma County. The rolling hills of this cool northern district are admirably suited to the production of the dry white wines out of which the annual Korbel cuvee is made.

Bone dry, this is a "Brut" in the true sense of the word.
