Fourth Generation

Established in 1893, the Union Trust Company is the oldest public trustee on the Pacific Coast. It has handled the estates of hundreds of California families, in some cases through the fourth generation.

Yet it costs no more (as the fees are set by law) to name this trust company executor of your Will than to name a relative or friend.

We continue to offer our services, whether the estate is large or small.

BEAULIEU VINEYARD, the de Latour family estate, lies in the heart of California's famed Napa Valley—one of the world's finest wine-producing areas. Its vintage wines originated from the same aristocratic grape varieties which produce the great white and red wines of Europe.

Beaulieu Wines this fall, as last, took the coveted California State Fair Wine-Judging "sweepstakes" with the greatest total of medal points awarded. If you haven't yet discovered "Beaulieu" vintages, ask the waiter at your favorite club, hotel or restaurant to suggest one for your meal.

TIME AND PLACE: Scotland at the close of the Sixteenth Century

Act I: Gardens of the Castle of Lammermoor

Act II: Scene 1: Ante-Room to Hall of the Castle
Scene 2: Great Hall of the Castle

Act III: Scene 1: Same as Act II, Scene 2
Scene 2: Tombs at Ravenswood

Encores not permitted — Bell rings three minutes before curtain rises

The Story of "Lucia di Lammermoor"

NOTE: A stranger, who it later develops is Sir Edgar of Ravenswood, has been seen lurking about the grounds of Lammermoor. This disquiets Sir Henry Ashton who, through treachery, has recently acquired the Ravenswood estates. In dire straits because of his part in a rebellion against King William I, Sir Henry is eager that his sister, Lucy, marry the wealthy Lord Arthur Bucklaw, into whose power he has fallen through debt.

ACT I: As the curtain rises Norman, captain of the guards, directs his men to search the old Ravenswood tower for the intruder. Sir Henry enters with Raymond to whom he speaks of his impending ruin and his concern over the stranger whom Lucy has been secretly meeting. Lucy and Alice come into the gardens. Lucy recites the gruesome legend of a Ravenswood who had killed his sweetheart in the gardens and vows that an apparition of the woman has warned her against Edgar. Edgar enters and tells Lucy that it is their farewell meeting as he has been ordered to France. He begs her permission to offer a truce to Sir Henry and claim her hand in marriage. But Lucy, knowing it to be futile, dissuades him. They part, promising eternal fidelity.

ACT II: Sir Henry tries to force Lucy into the marriage with Sir Arthur, telling her that his treachery to the King has been discovered and that he will be ruined unless she consents. But Lucy again refuses. He then shows her a forged letter purporting to have come from Edgar and which proves him to be faithless. Believing her lover to be untrue, Lucy now consents to the marriage. (Scene 2.) A great concourse of people has assembled to witness the wedding. Lucy is pale and haggard. She signs the marriage contract with trembling hand. At the moment, Edgar bursts into the room. Sir Henry faces him with drawn sword coldly demanding the reason for his interference and shows him the marriage contract. Edgar turns to Lucy for confirmation. She slowly nods her head in assent. Seizing the contract and tearing it to bits, Edgar fiercely upbraids Lucy and denounces the entire house of Ashton. In the ensuing quarrel a duel is arranged for the following morning.

ACT III. The bride and groom have returned to their rooms but the merry-making continues despite the interposition of Edgar. Suddenly the laughter ceases. Raymond, entering, tells the guests that Lucy has gone mad and now stands in the bridal chamber with a bloody sword over the corpse of her husband. Scarcely have the words been uttered than Lucy, a strange and unnatural light in her eyes, appears among them. Then comes the famous "Mad Scene". At its conclusion Lucy falls back into a swoon.

ACT IV: Edgar awaits Sir Henry for the duel. A train of mourners arriving tell him of the tragedy of the night before. A bell tolls the death of Lucy. And Edgar of Ravenswood, drawing a dagger from his belt, speeds forth his soul to join her in eternity.

THE WORLD'S MOST DISTINGUISHED
MOTOR CAR

That Cadillac should long since have been preferred above all other motor cars is only natural—for only Cadillac has devoted itself exclusively to fine car production for more than 45 years. Today, Cadillac is enjoying special distinction—for, in addition to being the world's finest car, it is also establishing wholly new standards of motor car performance.

YOUR CADILLAC DEALER

Has everything changed but your Will?

If you have not reviewed your Will for "several years" there is danger that your out-of-date Will could prove costly to your heirs.

A Will should be kept current. One of our Trust Officers will be glad to review your estate plan with you in the light of changed conditions. Then, have an attorney draw up your papers.

You will be interested, too, in the service offered by our Trust Department, whereby you give your heirs all the advantages of experienced estate management.

You are welcome to consult with us, and without obligation.

TIME AND PLACE: Legendary

Act I: Interior of Hunding's Hut in the Forest

Act II: A Wild and Rocky Pass

Act III: Rock of the Valkyries

Encores not permitted — Bell rings three minutes before curtain rises

The Story of "Die Walkure"

NOTE: "Die Walkure" is the second of Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen." In "Das Rheingold", prelude to the cycle, the Nibelunger Alberich steals the power-endowing ring forged from the Rheingold. Wotan, in turn, wrests it from Alberich but delivers it to the giant Fafner. Wotan has begotten nine immortal Valkyries who lead fallen heroes to Valhalla to fight the hordes of Alberich. He also begets the twins, Siegmund and Sieglinde, in union with an earth woman. It is their story that forms the subject of "Die Walkure".

ACT I: Siegmund, driven into Hunding's hut by a terrible storm, is confronted by Sieglinde, Hunding's wife. Hunding, returning, observes the likeness between the two, and learns that Siegmund is the son of Walse, his mortal enemy. Sieglinde, who has conceived a passionate love for Siegmund, pours a sleeping potion in Hunding's goblet. She tells Siegmund her story of abduction and forced marriage to Hunding and of the sword, visible where it has been plunged into an ash tree by a one-eyed warrior and destined for him with strength to pull it forth. Comparing stories they find themselves to be brother and sister as well as lovers. Both are children of Walse who had plunged the sword, Nothung, into the tree for their deliverance. Siegmund tears the sword from its ashen sheath and clasping Sieglinde in his arms, carries her passionately away.

ACT II: Wotan, who has decreed death for Hunding, so instructs Brunnhilde. But Fricka, his wife and guardian of the marriage vow, in a stormy scene avows that punishment should be visited upon Siegmund and Sieglinde guilty of adultery, and compels him to swear he will not protect his son. Wotan then commands Brunnhilde to protect Hunding and lead Siegmund to Valhalla. Brunnhilde vainly pleads Siegmund's cause. Siegmund and Sieglinde arrive fleeing from Hunding's vengeance. While Siegmund stands guard over the exhausted Sieglinde, Brunnhilde appears and moved by his devotion, promises him victory despite Wotan's command. Hunding is heard approaching and Siegmund rushes to meet his attack. Wotan appears and with a stroke breaks his sword to splinters. Hunding thrusts Siegmund through the breast and in turn is killed by a scornful wave of Wotan's hand.

ACT III: Brunnhilde implores aid for Sieglinde from the assembling Valkyries. But fearing the wrath of Wotan none dare offer it. Brunnhilde, giving Sieglinde the fragments of Siegmund's sword, bids her seek refuge in the forest wherein Fafner guards the ring there to await the birth of her expected child who shall be named Siegfried and conquer all. The outraged Wotan appears and sorrowfully announces his punishment of the disobeying Brunnhilde. Divested of her divinity she shall sleep on the mountain to become the bride of the first man who finds her. But he will build about her a magic circle of fire so that none but a hero may awaken her.

The Finest Car of its Class in the World

In the graceful flowing lines of the new Jaguar, no startling departure has been made from the dignity and good taste which critics the world over have declared to be inherent characteristics of Jaguar design.

The new Jaguar is a better Jaguar, a finer looking Jaguar, but is still, unmistakably, a Jaguar, and is now, more than ever, the finest car of its class in the world.
