At a Glance

IL TROVATORE

MUSIC BY GIUSEPPE VERDI; LIBRETTO BY SALVADORE CAMMARANO

Structure: 4 acts, with 1 intermission after Act II

Running time: 2 hours, 40 minutes

Language: Sung in Italian, with English supertitles

Key Characters:

- Manrico, a troubadour and rebel fighter
- Leonora, a noblewoman in love with Manrico
- Count di Luna, commander of the king's guard who desires Leonora
- Azucena, Romani woman bent on avenging her mother's death at the hands of the Count's father

The most popular of Verdi's works during his lifetime, Il Trovatore has enjoyed uninterrupted success since its 1853 premiere. It is the composer's 17th opera and marks the beginning of his middle period, along with other enduring works like Rigoletto and La Traviata.

The opera opens with a chilling horror story, introducing a fast-moving plot that hurls toward a shocking conclusion. Verdi's arias, duets, ensembles, and choruses sustain the work's momentum while giving the performers numerous opportunities to create moments of elegance, grandeur, reflection, and extreme drama. Il Trovatore does not preach a moralistic message or put forward a philosophy; its principal aim is to tell an exciting and musically vivid tale, at the heart of which are intense family dynamics.

Listen for: The concluding act is filled with vocal highlights for all four of the key characters, but listen to how Verdi creates something special for Leonora in Act IV. The scene opens with an expressive aria, followed by the Miserere sung with Manrico and the chorus, which leads into a two-part duet with the Count. The resulting vocal showcase has Leonora onstage and singing for roughly 22 minutes straight.

THE (R)EVOLUTION OF STEVE JOBS

MUSIC BY MASON BATES; LIBRETTO BY MARK CAMPBELL

Structure: 18 scenes, no intermission

Running time: 90 minutes

Language: Sung in English, with English supertitles

Key Characters:

- Steve Jobs, tech icon and founder of Apple
- Laurene Powell Jobs, Steve Jobs' wife
- Steve Wozniak, Apple co-founder known as "Woz"
- Kōbun Chino Otagawa, spiritual advisor to Jobs
- Chrisann Brennan, Jobs' girlfriend

The (R)evolution of Steve Jobs is the first opera by Bay Area composer and DJ Mason Bates. It features an electro-acoustic score for orchestra and electronica paired with a libretto by Pulitzer Prize-winning writer Mark Campbell.

Musically and dramatically inspired by the creative spirit of Steve Jobs, the opera progresses non-linearly through episodes in Jobs' life, from a 2007 product launch to scenes set in 1973 when he is inventing in the Jobs family garage with Woz and, after 18 scenes, to Jobs' own funeral in 2011. In the tradition of Richard Wagner's leitmotifs, i.e. melodies associated with specific characters or themes, Bates pairs each of the opera's characters with not just their own musical motif but a distinct sonic identity, and these collide and blend as the people interact, as if mixed by a DJ.

Did you know? Since its 2017 world premiere at Santa Fe Opera, The (R)evolution of Steve Jobs has been presented by seven different companies across the United States and won a Grammy Award. San Francisco Opera is one of the original co-commissioners of the opera, and these performances, postponed from 2020 by the pandemic shutdown, mark the opera's long-awaited local premiere near the Silicon Valley environs that provide much of the opera's setting.

Welcome to San Francisco Opera's Fall Season!

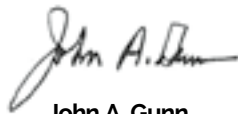

We're thrilled to be launching our 101st season after the tremendous success of our Centennial which officially ended this July. Our new season offers equally captivating artistry with three co-commissions by San Francisco Opera and the highest ratio of new stories that we have ever offered on our stage.

This season, Caroline H. Hume Music Director Eun Sun Kim will launch her initiative to perform operas by Giuseppe Verdi and Richard Wagner each season. She begins with Verdi's magnificent Il Trovatore and a new-to-San Francisco production of Wagner's Lohengrin (read more about it on page 25). Next summer she will lead an acclaimed production of Mozart's The Magic Flute that was inspired by 1920s cinema.

We will also explore powerful subjects including the multifaceted impact of technology on our lives with The (R)evolution of Steve Jobs by Mason Bates and Mark Campbell, protecting individual identity when society denies your freedom with Omar by Rhiannon Giddens and Michael Abels, and the resilience of families in the face of tragedy with Kaija Saariaho's Innocence.

Thank you for all you do to make this level of creativity possible. As a nonprofit organization, San Francisco Opera depends on all of you to support the level of artistic excellence that our community has come to enjoy. Thank you for being a part of our opera family, and we hope you enjoy this incredible year as we launch the second century of San Francisco Opera!

Sincerely,

John A. Gunn
Chairman of the Board
San Francisco Opera Association

Jack Calhoun
President
San Francisco Opera Association

P.S. from Jack Calhoun. This marks my first season as president of the San Francisco Opera Association. I have been privileged to serve on the Board for 15 years, and stepping into this role is incredibly meaningful for me, particularly as we embark upon our next century. We have made great strides in the last year, welcoming new people into our opera community with new performances, venues, and ticketing programs. I look forward to continuing to welcome new and returning patrons into our magical world of opera! Thank you for your ticket purchases and financial contributions that make it all possible.

One smart, professional and dynamic family team with one singular goal: your real estate success.

John A. & Cynthia Fry Gunn

TERRENCE MCCARTHY

Once again, the unprecedented generosity of Cynthia and John Gunn has set the stage for a dazzling season at San Francisco Opera. Since 2002, when John joined the Opera Board, the couple has underwritten numerous productions and provided exceptional support for many of the Company’s innovative endeavors. In September 2008, the Gunns made a historic commitment—believed to be the largest gift ever made by individuals to an American opera company—to help fund the signature projects of then General Director David Gockley, including new operas and productions, multimedia projects, and outreach programs, and they have proudly continued that support for General Director Matthew Shilcock. This season, the Gunns’ inspired generosity is helping make possible four productions—Il Trovatore, The (R)evolution of Steve Jobs, Lohengrin, and The Magic Flute. The Gunns invite everyone to give and join them as a member of San Francisco Opera’s donor community. John comments, “Opera is a dynamic art form, and all of us play a role in keeping it a meaningful part of our social fabric. With you we can propel San Francisco Opera into its next 100 years of artistic history.” John is the former chairman and CEO of Dodge & Cox Investment Managers. He joined the firm in 1972, the year he received his MBA from Stanford Business School and married Cynthia, who graduated from Stanford with an A.B. in political science in 1970. Early in her career, Cynthia was the editor and director of The Portable Stanford book series for ten years. She edited 28 books by Stanford professors on a vast array of topics, including Economic Policy Beyond the Headlines by George Shultz and Ken Dam. In addition to their support of San Francisco Opera, the Gunns are active members of the community. John is a former trustee of Stanford University and is Chairman Emeritus of the Advisory Board for the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research. Cynthia currently serves as a trustee of the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, is a former overseer of Stanford’s Hoover Institution, and has been a member of the advisory board of Family and Children Services and the board of the Lucile Packard Foundation for Children’s Health. Opera lovers are grateful to Cynthia and John and applaud their commitment to keeping San Francisco Opera a leading-edge company.

Diane B. Wilsey (Opening Week Grand Sponsor)

Dede Wilsey, a longtime San Francisco Opera board member, patron, and Opera Ball supporter, believes deeply in the transformative power of the arts, particularly the multifaceted world of opera. Says Dede, “It’s a marvelous spectacle. From the voices and pageantry to the scenery, costumes, and acting, opera fills the senses and takes you to another place.” Thanks to Dede’s generosity, opera enthusiasts of all ages have much to celebrate. As Opening Week Grand Sponsor for the seventeenth year, she is excited to celebrate the start of our 101st season with a concert of opera stars Roberto Alagna and Aleksandra Kurzak, with our beloved San Francisco Opera Orchestra and Chorus under the baton of Caroline H. Hume Music Director Eun Sun Kim. Dede is also supporting the celebratory floral arrangements that grace the War Memorial Opera House on September 8, the free, annual Opera in the Park concert at Robin Williams Meadow on September 10, and the opening production of Verdi’s Il Trovatore under the baton of Eun Sun Kim. Dede’s leadership support was critical in the creation of the Diane B. Wilsey Center for Opera, a dynamic, intimate space at the Veterans Building, which opened in spring 2016. Her philanthropic commitment to the community extends to many organizations. Dede has been chairman of the board of the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco since 1996 and serves on the boards of the San Francisco Opera, San Francisco Ballet, and the War Memorial Performing Arts Center and is a lifetime trustee of UCSF.

Jerome and Thao Dodson (Production Sponsor, Il Trovatore)

“A fiery horse with the speed of light, a cloud of dust, and a hearty, ‘Hi-Yo, Silver!’”

Those words, accompanied by the galloping excitement of Rossini’s William Tell Overture, transfixed a young Jerry Dodson as he listened to The Lone Ranger on the family radio in Oak Park, Illinois. Just as Bugs Bunny’s Rabbit of Seville had done for many, a lighthearted entertainment sparked a future operatic devotion.

That little boy grew up to attend Berkeley in the 60s, serve with the American Embassy in Vietnam where he and Thao met, and attend Harvard Business School. Eventually, the couple married, settled in the Bay Area, and raised a family. In the 1980s, Jerry was a pioneer in the field of socially responsible investing with little interest in opera. But in 1992, when San Francisco Opera decided to celebrate Rossini’s bicentennial with the rarely performed Guillaume Tell, Thao, already an opera lover, suggested to Jerry that they go.

Tell was praised for its striking Mansouri production, and the Dodsons began attending regularly. They became season ticket holders in 1999 and supporters, “in a small way,” as Jerry puts it. A friendship with David Gockley, which endures to this day, led to a larger role as Company Sponsors. “I so admired what he did for the opera, but it was not very good for my pocketbook,” Jerry laughs. Jerry also lends his financial expertise to the audit committee.

In 2016, Dodson considered the import of Gockley’s departure. He met with Matthew Shilvock and joined the Board that year. “We hit it off right away!” Jerry says. He felt a similar affinity with Keith Geeslin, then President of the San Francisco Opera Association. Eager to continue support, the Dodsons see this as a perfect time to revitalize and energize the Company within the San Francisco community. The initial fire ignited by William Tell continues to burn brightly.

Burgess & Elizabeth Jamieson (Production Sponsor, Il Trovatore)

Libby and Burgess Jamieson have made an extraordinary commitment to San Francisco Opera for more than three decades by supporting traditional classical productions. Their ongoing generosity has ensured an enduring place on the War Memorial Opera House stage for such applauded and memorable works as Die Meistersinger von Nürnberg, Il Trittico, La Bohème, Madame Butterfly, Turandot, Tosca, and La Traviata. They consider their sustained support of the arts, and especially of San Francisco Opera, as a means of preserving important cultural links for future generations. “Libby and I believe in the enduring love of great works appealing to seasoned and new audiences alike and which will attract the next generation of opera lovers.”

Burgess says. “We are so pleased to play a contributing role in bringing Il Trovatore to the stage. We look forward to this grand production, especially as it features Music Director Eun Sun Kim.” In 2011, at the conclusion of more than 45 years of active experience in private and public investment management, Burgess began serving as a Board Member on the San Francisco Opera’s Board of Directors and its investment committee.

Barbara A. Wolfe (Production Sponsor, The (R)evolution of Steve Jobs)

Barbara Wolfe has been a longtime opera fan and supporter of San Francisco Opera. Works of Mozart and Wagner, and operas in the classical Italian tradition are particular favorites. Most recently, Barbara supported the Company’s new productions of La Traviata, Don Giovanni, Tosca, and Die Frau ohne Schatten, as well as the 2018 Ring cycle. With her late husband Tom, Barbara also sponsored Tannhäuser, Tristan und Isolde, The Magic Flute, Mefistofele, Norma, and Don Carlo. Barbara serves on the boards of the San Francisco Opera Association and San Francisco SPCA and was a longtime trustee at Mills College. She has supported educational programs and scholarships at several primary and secondary schools, graduate scholarship and fellowship programs at UCSF Foundation, and the Achievement Rewards for College Scientists program in Northern California.

Barbara is also a supporter of the Fine Arts Museums of San Francisco, as well as numerous humanitarian and animal welfare organizations.

Jan Shrem & Maria Manetti Shrem

Maria Manetti Shrem has enjoyed extraordinary success in business, in particular in the fashion industry, where she played a major role in establishing Gucci as a truly global force. Today, her focus is philanthropy, and she has made no secret of the fact that she and her husband, Jan Shrem, aim to give away the bulk of their wealth in their lifetimes.

“I want to give with my warm hands, not after passing,” Manetti Shrem says. “And we want to inspire other wealthy people to give now. For me, the art of living is the art of giving.” Since the mid-1990s, Manetti Shrem has contributed generously in the San Francisco Bay Area, New York, the U.K., and Italy, where she was born, in Florence.

Maria and Jan have been San Francisco Opera supporters since 1985 and have provided significant support for opera artists through the establishment of four major funds. Through the Great Interpreters of Italian Opera Fund, they support many classic works of the Italian repertoire, including this season’s Il Trovatore and The Elixir of Love. Through the Conductors Fund, appearances of renowned conductors are assured at San Francisco Opera, this season for Omar and The Elixir of Love. Through the Emerging Stars Fund, Jan and Maria help bring some of opera’s most exciting rising talents to the stage. And finally, the Luminaries Concert Fund enables

San Francisco Opera to bring legendary artists to the stage for special events and performances.

Maria counts sopranos Renée Fleming and Nadine Sierra, tenor Michael Fabiano, and baritone Lucas Meachem as personal friends and was especially close to Luciano Pavarotti, treating the legendary tenor as family whenever he performed in San Francisco. Beyond their support for education, fine arts, and music, the Manetti Shrems have been generously supporting causes in medical research and science, focusing on communities of need, particularly the elderly and children. A few years ago, the president of Italy bestowed upon Maria Manetti Shrem the title of Grand Officer of the Order of the Star of Italy for her consistent support of cultural collaboration between Italy and the U.S. In June 2022, the Mayor of San Francisco, London Breed, along with the City and the County, proclaimed “June 22 Manetti Shrem Day for Philanthropy.”

In December 2022, she received The Spirit of the Opera award for her devotion to San Francisco Opera, her high level of commitment to advancing the success of the Company, and her ongoing support of the art form. She is the 2023 UC Davis Medal recipient for her profound arts legacy and passion for creating opportunities for exploration and education.

Our Donor Family

The collective support of San Francisco Opera's generous donor family keeps world-class opera on the stage and brings community programs to students and families. Each year, support from individuals and institutional funders accounts for 86% of the revenue needed to create transformative opera.

Listed gifts were received between August 1, 2022 and August 18, 2023. We have made every effort to ensure the accuracy of our donor listings. If we have misspelled or omitted a name, please accept our apology and notify us at (415) 565-3212 so that we may update our records accordingly.

Omar Giving Circle

Join a special new giving circle, available for new and increased gifts to support Rhiannon Giddens and Michael Abels' Omar. Omar is the true story of a 19th-century Islamic scholar from West Africa, enslaved in South Carolina, but who found and expressed identity and faith through the written word. The Omar Giving Circle is a broad-based effort beginning at only $22, embracing gifts of all sizes as vital to bring this important work to our community.

TAMBOURINE $22

Encircled by repeating pairs of metal discs, the "22" level is inspired by the prominence of the tambourine in the opera. Most scholars agree that the origins of the tambourine date back to 1700 BCE or even earlier, and it appears in sacred texts from West Africa, Turkey, Greece, Italy, India, and throughout the Middle East.

KUFI $120

The traditional hat worn by Omar in the opera is called a Kufi from the Kufi script it resembles. It plays a significant role in the opera as Julie, an enslaved woman, becomes close to him. The Kufi script is thought to have gone into general use in the 12th century. The hat is a part of the national dress of many West African countries and symbolizes African descent in many American cultures.

AKONTING $517

The akonting is an African gourd lute known as the ancestor of the modern banjo played by co-composer Rhiannon Giddens, who studied the instrument. The three strings of the akonting are tuned to the pattern 5-1-7, which inspires the name for this level! (7-note scale with 7th, 5th, and 1st notes.)

SCHOLAR $1,831

The best known of the scholar Omar Ibn Said's writings is his autobiographical essay, The Life of Omar Ibn Said, written in 1831, the work forms the basis of the opera.

BLUEGRASS $4,000

In honor of co-composer Rhiannon Giddens' frequent genre, bluegrass. Bluegrass was born out of North American blues music which was directly influenced by West African music. Recognized as a new American artform in the 1940's, Bluegrass is a fusion of music styles and experiences, much like the fusion of opera, Senegalese, and American styles found in Omar.

TAMA $7,280

The Senegalese tama, or talking drum, is known to project sounds imitating human speech across a seven-to-eight kilometer distance, or 7-2-8. Omar Ibn Said was originally abducted from West Africa, in the Futa Toro region (modern-day Senegal) where the Tama is played widely and used to send messages as well as make music.

OLIVE TREE $30,000+

Omar sings of the olive tree during the moment of darkness when his humanity is attacked, "The example of His light is like a niche within which is a lamp, which is within a glass, which is like a brilliant star fueled by a blessed tree, an olive tree, neither Eastern nor Western, whose oil would almost glow, even if untouched by fire." The themes of our shared humanity can be seen in the symbol of the olive tree.

CAROLINE H. HUME MUSIC DIRECTOR EUN SUN KIM
UNVEILS HER NEW VERDI AND WAGNER INITIATIVE

BY ROGER PINES

This fall San Francisco Opera embarks on a glorious adventure, starting two of the greatest composers in operatic history: Giuseppe Verdi and Richard Wagner. Beginning in 2023–24 with Il Trovatore and Lohengrin, Music Director Eun Sun Kim will conduct a Verdi and a Wagner opera each season well into the future.

No one is more excited about the Verdi/Wagner initiative than Kim herself. “It was my idea,” she explains. “After I debuted here with Rusalka (2019), we talked through other possibilities. When I accepted this position, Wagner was there from the beginning. I wanted to add Verdi as I planned my ongoing collaboration with the orchestra.”

Kim’s goal in that collaboration is to set priorities that will lead to the artistic growth of the Company. In considering how Verdi and Wagner can help in achieving that goal, she begins by comparing this project with a symphony music director’s cycles of Beethoven, Brahms, Schumann, or Mahler—“composers who showed enormous range within their own style as they developed.” It’s the same with Wagner and Verdi. Kim declares with great enthusiasm, “It will be wonderful to work with our orchestra on this repertoire on a long-term basis.”

Examining any Verdi or Wagner score is meaningful to Kim because “they have such depth musically, and you can’t detach the relationship between the music and the drama. The musical language simply goes with the drama! In bel canto opera, you have such beautiful melodies, but not necessarily with real drama behind them.” Wagner described his own works as “music drama,” but for Kim that phrase clearly applies to Verdi as well.

Initially, the Company will present better-known Verdi operas. (As a “prelude,” Kim led La Traviata last season.) The Verdi opera for 2023–24 will be a longtime audience favorite, Il Trovatore, written in 1853—the same year as Traviata—when the composer was mid-career. “I’m hoping we’ll move toward Verdi’s later works eventually,” says Kim, mentioning Simon Boccanegra as a work of particular interest.

Born in the same year (1813), Verdi and Wagner are described by Kim as “giants.” That designation comes, above all, from her feeling that “their music moves our hearts.” She’s also especially invigorated by the rhythmic vitality that makes Verdi immensely enjoyable to perform, both for singers and orchestral musicians. One word figuring prominently in Kim’s conversation is “nuance,” particularly vital in Wagner. “In a Wagner score, you can find nearly thirty measures within which he might give only one musical indication, from piano to crescendo. How will you create the necessary nuances there? As opposed to Puccini, where in La Bohème he wrote four different musical indications in one bar.”

In addition to Traviata, Kim’s Verdi conducting to date has included Rigoletto, Il Trovatore, Un Ballo in Maschera, and the Requiem. In any Verdi work, she feels it is essential “to balance between bringing out the music’s virtuosity and making the drama happen.” She recognizes the excitement of the musically grand-scale, thrillingly impassioned episodes that abound in Trovatore, but she also appreciates the intimacy that Verdi makes possible: “His orchestra totally reflects the singers’ emotion, the internal voice of the characters—that’s what makes him one of the giants.”

In Trovatore, Kim can’t really pick a favorite moment, but she does especially relish the Manrico/Azucena duet in Act II, “which really hurts when you think about this story—it’s really doloroso [painful]. That’s a moment in the opera on which I am most concentrated. It’s not only doloroso, but also sensitive and delicate as well, in presenting the relationship between these two characters.”

ACT I

Count di Luna's guards listen as their captain, Ferrando, tells the story of the count's father burning an old Romani woman at the stake for witchcraft. In revenge, the woman's daughter abducted one of the count's infant sons and burned the child to death. The other son, now the Count di Luna, has pledged to find the woman's daughter and avenge his brother.

In the palace garden, Leonora, the queen's lady-in-waiting, confides to her companion, Inez, that she has fallen in love with an unknown troubadour who has been serenading her. Inez has misgivings about the stranger, but Leonora cannot forget him. After the two women leave, Count di Luna appears. He is also in love with Leonora and intends to marry her. His thoughts are interrupted by the song of the troubadour. Leonora returns and, in the darkness, mistakes the count for her beloved. The troubadour emerges, accusing Leonora of infidelity, and revealing himself as Manrico, leader of the rebel forces. The count challenges him to a duel.

ACT II

Day breaks over a Roma mountain camp. The men hammer on their anvils and the women work at their handicrafts. In a trance, Azucena relives the events of her mother's death on the pyre and is haunted by her final cry for vengeance. As the camp breaks up, Manrico asks Azucena to elaborate on the story. In near delirium, she tells him of the abduction of the count's child and the burning, not of di Luna's brother, but of her own son. Manrico, who has always believed Azucena to be his mother, is puzzled by what he has heard. After regaining her senses, Azucena reaffirms her maternal love for him, and the imperative that he kill the Count di Luna. A messenger arrives and informs Manrico that Leonora, believing him killed in battle, is about to take the veil at a nearby convent. Despite Azucena's protests, he rushes off to Leonora.

At the convent, di Luna and his guards are planning to abduct Leonora. Manrico appears with his followers, who foil the count's attempts, allowing the lovers to escape.

—INTERMISSION—

ACT III

The count is laying siege to the fortress where Leonora and Manrico have taken refuge. Azucena is brought into the camp and Ferrando recognizes her as the murderer of di Luna's brother. In despair, she utters Manrico's name, doubling the count's fury and his delight at her capture.

Inside the fortress, Manrico and Leonora are about to be married. She is anxious, but Manrico assures her of his love. News arrives that Azucena has been captured and is to be burned at the stake. Manrico rallies his forces to attack.

ACT IV

Both Manrico and Azucena have been imprisoned. Leonora arrives at the prison and, when the count appears, offers herself to him in exchange for Manrico's life. Di Luna accepts the proposal joyously and, as he is giving orders to his guards, Leonora swallows poison, determined that the count's sole reward will be her lifeless body.

Inside the prison, Azucena is tormented by the memory of her mother's death. Manrico tries to comfort her by reminding her of peaceful days. Leonora enters and tells Manrico that he is free, but he suspects the price of his freedom and curses her. As the count appears, he overhears Leonora tell Manrico in her dying breath that she has preferred death to life without him. Enraged, the count sends Manrico to his death. Azucena is forced to witness the execution. Her mother is avenged: Di Luna has killed his own brother.

San Francisco Cheers for Il Trovatore

Groundbreaking for San Francisco's new opera house with Charles Kendrick of the War Memorial committee (smiling in the center), November 11, 1926.

SAN FRANCISCO HISTORY CENTER, SAN FRANCISCO PUBLIC LIBRARY

1926: PREMIERE BRINGS NEWS OF THE FUTURE

On October 6, 1926 prima donna Claudia Muzio and mezzo-soprano Kathryn Meisle headlined the San Francisco Opera premiere of Il Trovatore at the Civic Auditorium, but it was arguably Charles Kendrick of the War Memorial committee who stole the show. Before the performance began, Kendrick stepped in front of the curtain to offer an update about the city's plans to build a new opera house: $2 million of the necessary $5 million had been secured, and groundbreaking would take place in a matter of weeks. He said, "We shall call upon you music lovers and proud citizens of San Francisco to raise the rest of the money needed" and the audience roared its approval. Ground was broken and the funds were raised, but innumerable obstacles (including the onset of the Great Depression) delayed construction until January 1931. The War Memorial Opera House opened on October 15, 1932 in time for San Francisco Opera's tenth season, which included Il Trovatore starring Muzio and Meisle.

LISTEN: Zinka Milanov sings Leonora on the classic 1952 RCA Victor recording of Il Trovatore.

1943: THE VOICE IS THE THING

During the War, Company founder Gaetano Merola bolstered his roster with artists who were already established in the United States but new to the West Coast. One such import was dramatic soprano Zinka Milanov. In 1943, her only season with San Francisco Opera, the Croatian diva’s beautiful and perfectly controlled voice illuminated Mozart’s Don Giovanni, Verdi’s La Forza del Destino, and Il Trovatore. Act IV, Scene 1 of Trovatore provides Leonora with an unusually generous opportunity to make an impression—about 22 minutes of continuous singing in different configurations: an aria (“D’amor sull’ali rosee”), the “Miserere” with tenor and chorus, and a vigorous duet with the baritone (“Mira, di acerbe lagrime”). Milanov, who was more known for exquisite vocalism than realistic acting, wove an intoxicating spell in her protracted scene that led the San Francisco Chronicle to praise her as “strikingly beautiful to see and hear with a rich warmth and intimacy of expression that lent new color, life, and meaning to the part of Leonora.”

1929: SETTING A NEW ARTISTIC STANDARD

Il Trovatore was revived in 1929 for a powerful quartet of soloists including Giacomo Lauri-Volpi, the immensely popular Italian tenor who had opened the season as the Duke of Mantua in Verdi’s Rigoletto. Lauri-Volpi created such a furor singing the Duke’s aria “La donna è mobile” that the performance came to a standstill for nearly nine minutes of stomping, screaming, and riotous applause. Four nights later, he was on stage again to sing one of his specialties, Manrico in Il Trovatore. The tenor’s “sensation-provoking high notes” did not disappoint but it was the Company’s full ensemble—soloists, chorus, orchestra, scenic artists—that made headlines. The next morning, the San Francisco Examiner proclaimed, “Artistic Record Set ... the fact remains beyond possibility of cavil that last night’s performance of Il Trovatore represents the high water mark of achievement of the San Francisco Grand Opera.”

1958: VERDI DUET ACROSS GENERATIONS

One of Giacomo Lauri-Volpi's successors as the Manrico of a generation was Swedish tenor Jussi Björling. A regular with San Francisco Opera since his debut in 1940, Björling's return in 1958 proved to be his last season with the Company. The veteran tenor's onstage partner for Il Trovatore was the young soprano from Laurel, Mississippi, Leontyne Price, singing her first-ever Leonora; one legend at the end of his career singing alongside a rising star near the outset of hers. Björling's wife and biographer, Anna-Lisa Björling, recalled, "Price's Leonora, a role she was to perfect in years ahead, was already sensational." Björling and Price would record the Verdi Requiem together in 1960, an essential recording made just two months before the tenor's death, but their only onstage collaboration happened at the War Memorial Opera House in Il Trovatore.

1975: SPONTANEOUS OVATION FOR SHIRLEY VERRETT

In 1975, Verdi's opera was headlined by Joan Sutherland and Luciano Pavarotti, two of the most popular singers of their time, along with Russian powerhouse Elena Obraztsova as Azucena. When Obraztsova came down with laryngitis, Shirley Verrett was rushed in to replace her. Verrett, who took great care in creating vivid characterizations on stage, loved performing Azucena, a woman who lives on the margins of society and is mistreated by the powers that be. On the night of September 17, Verrett really got into her character. Against the backdrop of Verdi's incredibly dramatic music, she conveyed Azucena's Act II scene so vividly that as she described throwing the baby into the fire, the audience exploded. After several minutes of applauding, most of the audience had risen to their feet—a standing ovation right in the middle of a scene!

1986: DOLORA ZAJICK'S LEADING-ROLE DEBUT AS AZUCENA

The 1986 Summer Season opened with Il Trovatore featuring an esteemed Bulgarian soprano, a venerable Venetian baritone, and an Italian tenor sporting a pair of boots previously worn by the swashbuckling film star Errol Flynn. But it was Dolora Zajick (then billed as Zajic), the young American mezzo-soprano performing Azucena, who had everyone talking. In her first-ever leading role, the recent Merola Opera Program participant and former Adler Fellow brought the house down. The San Francisco Examiner praised how she “lived every word and every scene. She brought chills to the spine.” When Zajick took her curtain call at the end of the opera, “Brava!” cheers reigned down confirming that a spectacular new talent had arrived. Zajick, one of the foremost Verdi mezzos of the last 40 years, reprised her inimitable Azucena with San Francisco Opera in 1994 and 2003.

2009: SWAN SONG OF A BELOVED BARITONE

San Francisco Opera has showcased many of the world’s leading baritones as the Count di Luna in Il Trovatore, including Leonard Warren, Ettore Bastianini, and Vladimir Chernov. The Company’s 2009 premiere of Sir David McVicar’s staging featured the silver-maned Dmitri Hvorostovsky in the role. Known for his flawless breath control, matinee-idol looks, and excellence in the music of Rossini, Mozart, Rimsky-Korsakov, and, most of all, Verdi, Hvorostovsky was one of opera’s bonafide superstars and a Bay Area favorite. The Count would be his last role with San Francisco Opera. In June 2015, Hvorostovsky was diagnosed with a brain tumor; within two years he was gone at only 55. Before his passing, Hvorostovsky made a brief and highly emotional return to the stage, singing three last performances at the Metropolitan Opera. The role? Count di Luna in McVicar’s production of Il Trovatore which Hvorostovsky had helped introduce and is now inextricably linked. ❁

VISIONS OF THE ROMA
Outsiders in
Il Trovatore

BY ADA WOLIN

Il Trovatore is an epic story of power, prejudice, and revenge, set against the dramatic backdrop of a medieval civil war. Though some aspects of its plot may beggar belief, the opera sets a complicated scene with minimal pedantry. Yet, this efficiency comes at a cost. That Il Trovatore emphasizes story and emotion over naturalism is not unique, nor is it condemnable. Within opera, every note, every moment, every detail has the power to reach listeners, each of whom brings their own knowledge and experience to the opera. To achieve accessibility, Il Trovatore relies on a gradient of familiar archetypes—Count di Luna, the cruel and controlling inheritor of generational wealth; Manrico and Leonora, lovers separated by class; Azucena, a Romani outcast whose life has been marred by tragedy. But Il Trovatore does more than rehash familiar settings and social paradigms—the opera’s historical setting and marginalized characters represent the changing, sometimes radical, and often contradictory view of outsiders during the Romantic period in Europe.

Romanticism emerged in the late eighteenth century as an artistic response to the rationalism of the Trovador enraptured Spanish audiences with its evocative medieval setting onto which the playwright cast an epic of forbidden love, revenge, and power. Spain’s Romantic period began in earnest in the mid-1830s, as did its comparatively slow march toward industrialization. Prior to the 1830s, Romanticism was making its way to Spain through translated works by British poets.

In England, industrialization was well under way in the early 19th century, an alienating force (according to the Romantics) that prioritized output and commerce over personal freedom and human dignity. The Romantic interest in “outsiders” developed in tandem with the development of this grim, industrial world. Nineteenth-century Romantic intellectuals felt that by looking beyond the mainstream social order, they could find an example of how to live a truer, more meaningful life. One marginalized group who piqued the interest of Romantics were the Roma, at that time known as “Gypsies,” who were set apart by their nomadic way of life and their alternative economic framework, which was based in skilled trades and small-scale vending. As is often the case, there was more to the Enlightenment. To the Romantics, a logical and scientific worldview poorly encapsulated the messy subjectivity of emotion, experience, and morality. Romantic writers emphasized emotional over rational expression and eschewed many of the aesthetic constraints of the Enlightenment in favor of a spontaneous and personal creative process. Such writers also drew inspiration from an idealized version of the past, looking to pastoral settings and folk traditions that evoked a more authentic connection to the self and to nature.

Though Giuseppe Verdi and Salvatore Cammarano’s Il Trovatore first reached Italian audiences in 1853, the opera’s story originated seventeen years earlier with El Trovador, an 1836 play by Antonio García Gutiérrez. El story. As journalist Juliet Lapidus wrote for Slate, “barred from purchasing land or joining guilds, the Roma had no choice but to move about. Wandering became a way of life, and the Roma fit into the European economy by selling merchandise in rural areas distant from shops.” This way of life was no more innate to the Roma than 12-hour factory days were to the average industrial laborer. Nevertheless, essentialized depictions of the Roma as innately restless and capricious people proliferated throughout the Romantic period in Europe.

That Romani people had, by the 19th century, endured centuries of oppression also endeared them to the Romantics, whose interest in nonconformity and personal freedom aligned with the Roma’s perceived rejection of the established social order. That is not to say that Romanticism created en masse acceptance or understanding of the Roma. Even within an individual writer's or artist's oeuvre, we find seemingly contradictory portrayals. The British poet William Wordsworth largely expressed sympathy and even admiration for Romani people, going so far as to criticize the societal circumstances which marginalize them in "The Female Vagrant" (1798). By comparison, in his "Gipsies" from 1807, Wordsworth defines the limits of his liberality; "In scorn I speak not;—they are what their birth and breeding suffer them to be; Wild outcasts of society!"

Literature from Spain's Romantic period also reveals multifaceted, even fragmentary attitudes toward outsiders and social liberalism. Spain's recently unstable political climate and deeply entrenched Catholicism, in some cases, yielded conservative and nationalistic themes. These are particularly found in the historical drama, a format which gained significant popularity among Spanish dramatists, including Gutiérrez. In most history plays, accurate representation of events was secondary to the overarching emotional narrative. The medieval period was an especially fruitful setting because it was familiar enough to be recognized by the audience and distant enough for the artist to insert modern sensibilities and more challenging social issues.

In Il Trovatore, we see a many-sided reflection of how outsiders were perceived during this period. At times this exoticism is embraced; at others it is held at arm's length. We can rejoice that the opera rejects some of the most pernicious stereotypes of its Romani characters. While the Roma were often associated with indolence or fringe economic activities such as fortune-telling, Il Trovatore's Roma characters extol the praises of hard work.

It is important not to mistake the opera's tolerance of outsiders for accurate representation. In The Roma: Between a Myth and a Future, Dimitrina Petrova notes that within European Romanticism, "the nomad is wrapped in a cloud of romantic fantasy—a perception of freedom understood as carelessness. An intrinsic element of this fantasy is the unrepressed Gypsy woman—‘Carmen’ or ‘Esmeralda’ dancing in harmony with nature.” That the joyful ‘band of Gypsies’ is a foil to the war and power-hungry world of Count di Luna’s men serves to reinforce another equally simplistic view of the Roma. We see this paradigm echoed in Act III, when Azucena claims “D’una zingara è costume mover senza disegno il passo vagabondo, ed è suo tetto il ciel, sua patria il mondo” (“It’s the gypsy’s custom to move her wandering steps without any plan; the sky is her roof, and the world is her country”). Yet, even as Azucena’s own words affirm this stereotype, the opera’s overarching story rejects this one-note characterization. Most of us are unlikely to believe that Azucena is either free or careless. Through modern eyes, we can see that she is deeply bound by the trauma of her mother’s murder and the terrible events which followed it.

Group of Romani women dancing while men play guitar and tambourine in Granada, Spain, undated.
BRIDGEMAN IMAGES

Ultimately, Il Trovatore’s historical backdrop tells us more about the opera’s 19th-century milieu than it does about its historical narrative. But within what Tracie

Amend describes as an “imagined past,” the opera creates verisimilitude through its depiction of anti-Roma discrimination. It is a masterful twist of irony that in an opera as grand, sprawling, and ambitious as Il Trovatore, the true axis of the story is an act of prejudice. The wrongful accusation against Azucena’s mother—that she bewitched Count di Luna’s son, an act for which she was burned at the stake—is the shared history that brings all four lead characters together (whether they know it or not). As modern viewers, we would certainly be within our rights to view this precipitating event as just another dramatic prop to facilitate the opera’s story. Alternatively, we could view it as a comment on the long life span of bigotry—empowering some, marginalizing others, affecting all. ❁

I really think we have
on our team!”*

It's often lamented that there are few great Verdi singers nowadays, but the Company's Trovatore artists have been triumphantly successful internationally in Verdi roles. Kim has worked previously with Ekaterina Semenchuk and George Petean, but it will be a “first date” for her with the other three principals. Paraphrasing a quip from the legendary tenor Enrico Caruso, she notes that “I always joke that casting Trovatore is very easy—you just need to find the five best singers in the world,” adding, “I really think we have those singers on our team!”

As for Wagner, his music was new to Kim when she arrived in Europe from her native Korea to finish her studies. “In Germany, Wagner came into my life. I had to get over all the clichés about Wagner being long, boring, difficult.” Her first time conducting Wagner was an unexpected work, rarely heard today: Das Liebesverbot. “I don't feel I need to perform it again,” she said of the composer's first staged opera, written at age twenty-two, “but it was a great beginning in getting to know Wagner.” That production in Meiningen was followed by Der Fliegende Holländer, first in Bergen and then Frankfurt. It was a Bergen performance for students that showed Kim how Wagner could affect an audience. Her listeners, ranging in age from seven-year-olds to teenagers, were “so silent, so into the drama. At the end, it was like a rock concert—they went crazy over that music! Wagner speaks to kids, to adults, to everyone.”

Kim is clearly delighted to launch the Wagner portion of the Verdi/Wagner initiative with her first Lohengrin, the work with which Wagner began to find his own style. “With Holländer and Tannhäuser, Wagner was experimenting,” Kim notes. “Lohengrin is the first piece where he's on the way to getting rid of ‘numbers’ [distinctly defined, self-contained arias and duets].” When Wagner wrote about the Lohengrin Act I prelude, “he said he wanted it to be ‘erstmalig, einmalig, neuartig’ [as if for the first time, unique, new], and also überirdisch [unearthly, celestial]. That music is a perfect way to begin the opera.”

Wagner composed magnificently for the Lohengrin chorus and Kim looks forward to working on this opera with the Company's choristers. “In our rehearsals we'll work on details, nuances, and on how we'll drive the drama forward.”

Surprisingly, Kim finds Lohengrin relatable to contemporary lives. No matter that it was created nearly 175 years ago: “What makes us human beings hasn't drastically changed! Figures like Lohengrin, like Ortrud, are always present in our own time. As long as the storytelling is strong and it works onstage, I think the audience can connect with the piece very easily." She's reminded in that respect of last season's Die Frau ohne Schatten, where "you could feel the audience's energy, how connected they were to the drama. That's the power of a live performance, and why we all gather together to experience it."

As with Trovatore, Kim can't wait to collaborate with the Lohengrin cast. "I haven't worked with [tenor] Simon O'Neill, but I've heard him perform a lot in Europe. There's such clarity in his voice, and what he does with the text makes the storytelling meaningful. Heldentenor repertoire is physically demanding and the singer must pace himself, yet without letting the audience think, 'Oh, now he's saving his energy to get to the end.' Simon understands this. I have huge respect for him." Opposite O'Neill is Julie Adams, a former Adler Fellow singing her first Elsa. "I've been working with her on the role since last summer. We're both people who are picky about the details—this work has been really exciting."

Kim hasn't seen the productions by Sir David McVicar (Il Trovatore) and David Alden (Lohengrin), but she conducted the McVicar Rusalka in San Francisco "and I admired its wonderful Personenführung [lit., "guidance of the characters"]. When seen in London, Alden's Lohengrin was hailed by Bachtrack's critic as "provoking far more thought and tension than any Lohengrin I've ever seen." Kim is "very, very excited to finally work with David Alden. Like David McVicar, he's totally connected with the music as well as the drama in all his productions."

In all the upcoming Verdi and Wagner repertoire, Kim knows that "what the audience gets from the live performances will always be different. For longtime subscribers, I hope experiencing these operas will be meaningful for them, and that they'll realize how closely the orchestra and I are connected—that we're a team. And for firstcomers, I hope these operas will be a special voyage of discovery. If one of our performances is a life-changing moment for them, what more can I expect?" ❁

RENATA SCOTTO (1934-2023)

Renata Scotto as Leonora in Il Trovatore, 1975.
RON SCHERL

Opera enthusiasts worldwide were saddened to learn of the passing of Italian soprano Renata Scotto on August 16. Her commitment on the stage and theatrical intensity made Scotto not only a fan favorite but one of the art form's most unforgettable figures. Scotto made her San Francisco Opera debut in 1974 as Cio-Cio-San in Madama Butterfly, returning on multiple occasions including for the 1979 opening night performance of Ponchielli's La Gioconda, which was telecast. In recognition of her artistry and the gift she brought to music lovers in the Bay Area and around the globe, San Francisco Opera dedicates the September 12 performance of Il Trovatore to her memory.

KEITH GEESLIN RECEIVES 2023 NATIONAL OPERA TRUSTEE AWARD

Former president of the San Francisco Opera Association Keith Geeslin is a recipient of the 2023 National Opera Trustee Recognition Award. Geeslin, who recently stepped down from his role after a decade of distinguished service and currently serves as Vice Chairman of the San Francisco Opera Board, is being honored for his exemplary leadership, particularly in growing audiences, doubling the size of the Opera's endowment, ensuring the financial health of the Company during the pandemic, and spearheading a number of key Board initiatives. "The 2023 National Opera Trustee Recognition Award recipients represent the best of our field's leadership," states Marc A. Scorca, president and CEO of OPERA America. "We shine a light on their service to their opera companies as models of superb nonprofit governance. Their exceptional service to their companies strengthens opera across North America."

Reflecting on Life at 100

BY GENERAL DIRECTOR MATTHEW SHILVOCK

As a proud San Francisco Opera centenarian, I hope you might humor me with a few words of reflection on what it meant to turn 100. It was around 2017 that we started developing plans for the Centennial, exploring repertoire, discussing special programming, and determining how to frame this auspicious moment, one with very little precedence in America. We quickly determined the Centennial must be a season that both honored our storied legacy but that also propelled us into a new century—a springboard from a glorious past into a thrilling future.

How little could we have known just what a hurdle we would have to leap over, and how much of the Centennial would ultimately be planned not five years out but rather 18 months out. While big fundamentals like a new John Adams opera and Die Frau ohne Schatten were already underway in 2017, pausing the Company in 2020 for the pandemic meant re-envisioning everything else.

By the spring of 2021 we were reassembling a new Centennial, holding true to the guiding principle that it both honor the past and energize the future. And, in a way, how much more prescient to envision the future on an 18-month cycle rather than a five-year horizon!

I am so proud of how the Centennial ultimately honored the past and trailblazed the future: a balance of works, artists, and themes that ensured the finest opera in our theater, and a suite of innovation programs that previewed the future edge of the artform. In that intersection was, I believe, an exemplar for what is vital to our future:

- Extraordinary artistry, helmed by a spectacular music director as we are so fortunate to have in Eun Sun Kim.
- Unparalleled casting, as in a trio of leading Brünnhildes onstage in one evening as we had with Die Frau ohne Schatten.
- Bold, visionary new operas that tell meaningful stories, and fresh productions conceived and designed for this theater and for this community.
- Pushing on artistic boundaries, forging new and unexpected paths that can result in a shipping container opera popping up in Los Gatos, or one of our Instigators, a VR-expert, being inspired by an Adler Fellow to explore brain-wave technology.

This, and so much more, was our Centennial Season.

What was so thrilling to me was that the Centennial was not just an artistic triumph; it was also an exemplar for how to energize audiences. At a time when audiences are much more selective about entertainment choices, we realized some quite amazing audience statistics this past year. Here are a few highlights:

- The summer season saw an extraordinary 90% of the house's capacity filled.
- Although we began the year down 20% in subscriber households compared to 2019 (sadly a very common, post-pandemic statistic industry-wide), five of the eight operas sold enough single tickets to exceed their subscription shortfall.
- El último sueño de Frida y Diego saw 99% of its capacity filled. We also know that the audience represented a much higher proportion of Hispanic patrons than is typical here, tripling from 6% to 19%.
- Both Madame Butterfly and Frida y Diego saw over 50% of their single ticket buying audiences being brand new to San Francisco Opera.
- The Dolby Family' Opera for the Bay subsidized tickets initiative was transformational. This vanguard program saw 9,000 tickets sold at just $10 each during the Centennial, with 70% of recipients being new to the Company. 17% of those recipients having already re-engaged to see another opera.
- We know from available demographic analysis that programs like Opera for the Bay, and new programming like Bohème Out of the Box and Frida y Diego are bringing in younger people and are beginning to broaden our demographic reach.

This is not an easy time to be attracting audiences. Many are going out much less than they did pre-pandemic, and we're all battling the doom-loop narrative of San Francisco. The Centennial was much needed proof both locally and nationally that thrilling programming produced at the highest levels of excellence can fill houses and create a wonderful city-wide energy!

We felt that so proudly with the critical acclaim for the Centennial. Joshua Kosman of the San Francisco Chronicle noted "I've been covering this company since 1985, and in all that time there's never been a season in which so much ambition has been paired with such a high level of execution." Joshua Barone in the New York Times noted of the summer season (referencing operatic work both here and at the Symphony) "For a week this month, San Francisco was the country's opera capital."

This all was made possible because of the generosity of our donor community who partnered with us at extraordinary levels to create a season of such impact and energy. We raised $55.5M in donations for the Centennial, the most significant annual fundraising goal this company has ever seen. From patrons rounding up ticket purchases with online purchases to multi-million-dollar commitments, every penny of contributed revenue is critical to our survival, and we saw last season just how profound the impact of visionary philanthropy can be.

The level of passionate devotion we saw this Centennial is so indicative of you, our spectacular audience. For 100 years, San Francisco Opera audiences have propelled this company to the stratosphere. Artists adore singing for you, your passion enables history to be made on this stage, and your devotion has sustained this company in the most extraordinary way.

It is hard to put into words my gratitude for the Company members who went above and beyond at every step of the journey to create artistry and energize the entire community around San Francisco Opera. At every turn, they were the Centennial heroes, carrying forth the torch and legacy that so many have built and nurtured over the first hundred years. This is a company for which, quite literally, anything is possible.

And now, it's on to #101. The first season of our second century. It's a season that has the potential to be as exciting as #100, and I cannot wait to see us propel forward the energy of a most spectacular centennial and, together, keep sharing in these awe-inspiring experiences.

Thank you for being a part of something so extraordinary. 🌟
